Hershey Chocolate, Atlantic Dairy Announce Long-Term Supply Agreement

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) and HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Atlantic Dairy Cooperative and Hershey Chocolate U.S.A., a division of Hershey Foods Corporation, jointly announced Tuesday that the dairy cooperative will supply the confectionery company with all its raw milk needs in Pennsylvania. The announcement was made by Michael Pasquale, president, Hershey Chocolate, and Robert Dever, Atlantic's chief executive officer.

For the last 10 years Atlantic has had Hershey as a customer, but Hershey has also bought milk directly from 722 farms in southeast Pennsylvania. Under the new agreement, these farmers will be offered membership in Atlantic, which currently represents 3,500 dairy farm families in the Middle Atlantic region.

According to Dever, the new agreement benefits both companies and will result in increased income for the dairy producers currently supplying Hershey with milk.

John Long, Hershey Foods Corporation, agrees. "We are always looking to make our operation more cost effective," Long said. "But from the farmers' point of view, we have always bought all their milk whenever they produced it and sold whatever excess we may have had into the Class 1 market. However, we did not do enough of this to be able to increase the blend price to the farmers as much as a cooperative such as Atlantic Dairy has been able to do. So we think the move is good for us and good for the farmers also.

And since Hershey is already Atlantic's third largest customer, the agreement will not affect prices paid to current Atlantic members. Robert McSparren, president of Atlantic Dairy, said the move is good for everyone.

"Without customers we don't need members," McSparren said. "Because of our businesslike dealings with Hershey over the last 10 years, they have seen us as a reliable source of the milk supply they need. And for the farmers, we have the over-order pricing and the returned profits (an extra nickel in September) to make it good. Since we are a regional cooperative, we can't control the national market. But what we do is in the 30 to 50 cent bracket.

"This agreement allows both companies to concentrate on what they do best," Dever said. "Hershey Chocolate U.S.A.'s expertise is in the manufacturing and marketing confectionery products. Our expertise lies in marketing milk for dairy farmers for the best possible price.

"Hershey Chocolate U.S.A is a strong supporter of production agriculture in Pennsylvania," Dever said. "We look forward to a long and successful business relationship with them."

Pasquale agrees. "We're very pleased with this agreement," Pasquale said. "We feel a full-supply contract with Atlantic Dairy Cooperative is in our best interest, as well as the dairy farmers who currently supply us with milk."

The agreement is effective December 1, 1994. In the meantime, all current shippers to Hershey will be offered membership and a milk market by Atlantic.

BERNVILLE (Berks Co.) — For the past several years, the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association has annually presented county level awards and a top state herd dairy herd management award in recognition of members who have made significant achievements in improving the management of their herds.

This year two herd managements tied as the top herd managers — Fantasyland Farm in Berks County, and Mark and David Campbell in Armstrong County.

The awards are based on various dairy herd management aspects and points are awarded to those aspects.

The basic qualifications, according to the awards outline, are that end-of-year data (end of September each year) is used, that herds must be on official test, that herds must have at least 10 cow years and 10 tests for the most recent cow year, that the top three herds in each breed with 20 or more official tests will be recognized, and all information for the entire testing year will be used.

As far as determining winners, the Pa DHIA has a point system based on milk production increases per cow, protein and fat production increases, and pounds of peak milk milk production, the average days to peak production,

READING (Berks Co.) — More than 380 farm friends from a wide range of industries met at the 11th Annual Berks County Farm-City Banquet Thursday evening at The Inn at Reading.

What they learned, according to exchange representatives from farming and industry, is that there are distinct parallels between farm and non-farming businesses, according to Chip Lutz, president of Sentry Abstract Company.

Lutz exchanged experiences by spending a day with sheep farmer Joe Vogel, Stony Run Farm, Kempton. He said that farmers should be granted the right to compete on an "even keel" and that his experience allowed him to "garner a new respect for the kind of work that goes into farming," he said.

Vogel, president of the Berks County Sheep and Wool Growers, manages a herd of 80 Columbia ewes on his farm. Vogel called the farm-city exchange program "a great way of getting people from the city together." Vogel said the program promotes "the total understanding of from whence each other comes."

Vogel was provided a tour of the abstracting business and was impressed with the high-tech developments in title searching and record-keeping.

Martene Firestine, who with husband Mike farm 150 acres of vegetable and other crops and maintain 30 head of registered Polled Hereford cattle on their Womelsdorf farm, said the program "gives you a great insight." Firestine, who toured the offices

Pa. State Grange Holds Annual Convention

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The Pennsylvania State Grange last week held its 122nd annual convention at the Embers Convention Center in Carlisle, reviewing policy, honoring members and electing officials.

Gordon Hiller, of Lycoming County, was reelected master for another two years. The position of master is equivalent to that of a president in a more modern organization.

In the position of master, Hiller — a retired farmer, retired conservation program specialist for DER, and retired regional director for the state Department of Agriculture — is to be responsible for supervising the state office in Harrisburg and overseeing all state Grange programs, as well as visiting Granges, hearing concerns, helping members solve problems and representing the organization as a member of various agricultur-

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 2, 1994

GRAIN AND SOYBEAN PRICES EXTENDED TUESDAY'S GAINS WITH EXPORT OPTIMISM THE MAJOR SUPPORTER. WHEAT 5 TO 9 CENTS HIGHER. CORN 2 TO 4 CENTS HIGHER. SOR- GHUM UNCHANGED TO 2 CENTS HIGHER. SOYBEANS 4 TO 8 CENTS HIGHER. GOOD EXPORT DEMAND THIS WEEK AND EXPEC- TATIONS OF POTENTIAL NEW SALES TO BE OFFERED TO EGYPT, PUSHED WHEAT PRICES HIGHER. REPORTS THAT CHINA MAY BE SEEKING AROUND 200 MILLION DOLLARS IN GSM-102 FUNDS, ALSO A POSITIVE FACTOR. CORN AND SOYBEAN PRICES CLIMBED HIGHER IN REACTION TO HIGHER WHEAT PRICES AND IMPROVED EXPORT INTERESTS. SOYBEAN PRICES JUMPED HIGHER DUE TO STRENGTH IN BEAN OIL AND LIGHT FARMER SELLING. HARVEST CONTINUED ACTIVE AS STORAGE SPACE AND TRANSPORTATION REMAINS A PROBLEM. THE MAJORITY OF BEANS ARE OUT OF FIELDS BUT UNCUT CROPS COULD BE HELD OVER TO 1995 DUE TO LOW PRICES AND SHRINK- ING ELEVATOR ROOM.

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

NOVEMBER 7-13, 1994

SADIE HAWKINS DAY, NOVEMBER 12.

ON WITH THE CHASE!

Sadie Hawkins Day, celebrated on Saturday, November 12, this year, is not a typical holiday It's the invention of Al Capp, creator of the Li'l Abner cartoon strip. Capp conceived of a day in Dogpatch, USA, when all the unmarried ladies could pursue (literally) their man. If caught, the hapless bachelor was soon trudging down the aisle. Needless to say, pandemonium erupted in Dogpatch. Interestingly, this fictional world so captured people's imaginations that Sadie Hawkins Day passed into the realm of modern folklore The first Sadie Hawkins Day was November 9, 1938, but today it's celebrated on a Saturday to accommodate the "girls-ask-boys" school dances

The way to fight a woman is with your hat. Grab it and run. — John Barrymore

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Don't double the salt when you double a recipe — use only half again as much.

EARTHWISE

Are your shelves crammed with books, but you've got "nothing" to read? Try recycled reading Many areas have second-hand bookstores that not only sell used books but also accept them for cash or credit toward your next purchase This has all the advantages of a yard sale without the work Clean out your shelves and restock with "new" books for those long winter evenings ahead You'll feel good knowing you've saved money and sent those books to a new home

PARADISE TOBACCO SALES
ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS
FIRST TOBACCO SALE: DECEMBER 5, 1994
Sale Every Mon., Wed. & Fri. Thereafter
When stripping tobacco, please grade 3 ways. Color grade. Please watch your moisture when stripping. Tobacco companies are saying they need this crop. If you have hail cut tobacco, color grade and make neat bales - it pays! Keep green out.
STRIP YOUR TOBACCO EARLY!
609 tobacco companies are saying: get your crop on auction in December. They say they need PA 609 tobacco to blend with burley tobacco. This is good news for PA 609 as it is becoming known worldwide. Tennessee and Kentucky auctions open at Thanksgiving. Local tobacco farmers should bring some of their best tobacco to first sale, December 5th, with a full warehouse to attract buyers. There are reports tobacco buyers are telling tobacco companies in the south that they can buy cheaper on the farm. If this is true -- think twice!
DISCOUNTS ON BALE BOXES AND LATHE HOLDERS.
If ordered before November 1, 1994. You can order a bale box and take cost off tobacco check when you sell at Paradise. Cotton twine also in stock.

OPINION

Proper Priorities

From time to time we hear about bad ethics in the show ring. And we just want to caution livestock and dairy exhibitors that animal agriculture is under the microscope. We cannot be seen as allowing unethical, deceptive or illegal practices to occure in our industry, especially in our youth programs.

In the October 1994 Livestock Conservation Institute newsletter, Glenn Slack, LCI executive director, reports that at a midwest livestock show and auction last fall, a fair-goer caught on video one of the livestock industry's weakest moments. A young man held his lamb by the head as another man repeatedly pounded the animal's back, apparently to cause swelling that would give it the firmness judges look for in livestock competition. The home video made the evening newscasts and was an embarrassment to the entire livestock industry.

Formal charges of animal cruelty were brought against the two; a professional fitter and the 16-year-old owner of the lamb. The fitter was found guilty in the beating, ordered to pay $1,000 in court costs, and received a suspended one-year sentence. The exhibitor, not charged in the case, was forced to forfeit his $900 prize and was banned from participating in the show for two years.

Other reports of unethical practices in show animals include:

—A bovine nip n' tuck around the brisket or belly to give the animal a leaner look.

—In sheep, the last two ribs surgically removed to give the loin a longer appearance and feel.

—Cosmetic dental surgery in cattle to conceal the true age of the animal.

—Parents switching lambs at the show by using stolen paint and number brands to alter identity.

—Pumping an animal with air or beer before a show to make it appear fuller.

—Jeff Goodwin, extension specialist with Texas A&M says the four biggest possible downfalls to the junior livestock program are as follows: 1, Illegal and extra-label drug use on show animals; 2, False ownership and substitution of animals; 3, Hiring professional fitters and groomers; and 4, physical alteration of animals.

We would add a 5th reason for downfall. The unproportionately high monetary reward that goes to the champions. The right slap on the rump by a judge can mean thousands of dollars of increased income at youth livestock sales. While everyone appreciates the businesses that support our youth with the purchase of these 4-H and FFA projects, a cap should be placed on the amount of money one person can receive, and the excess money above this cap should go to benefit the total youth program involved.

While we do not believe illegal practices in youth programs are widespread, any such activity gives a public black eye to the livestock industry. In addition, when adults are involved in these unethical practices, a terrible example is given to the very youth we want to influence for good.

Everyone needs to keep in mind that the real reason to give a youth a livestock project is not because of the money that can be made, but because of the lessons that can be learned.

It's a matter of proper priorities.

To Know About Frost And Corn

Much of this year's late planted corn was killed by frost before reaching maturity. Frost damage occurs to corn when temperatures remain below 32 degrees for 4 to 5 hours or when temperatures dip to 28 degrees for only a few minutes.

The amount of loss to the crop is dependent on the stage of growth and the amount of leaf surface actually killed. If grain moisture is under 35 percent, the amount crop loss is minimal. When corn is in the late milk stage, losses could be as high as 36 percent; at the soft dent stage, losses will be about 15 percent; at full dent but before the kernel is hard, losses will be about 9 percent; and at hard dent, the losses will be 5 percent or less.

If the frost did not kill the entire plant and some green leaves remain, the plant will continue to mature.

To Manage Frosted Corn

A good rule of thumb to follow is to let the crop mature more if there are still some green leaves left and it has not reached black layer yet. If the cornfield has been killed completely by frost, management options will depend upon the desired end use of the crop.

The best option for corn frosted in the milk stage is to green chop it or harvest it as silage when whole plant moisture is in the range for putting it into the silo. If corn has reached the dough stage, it may be harvested for grain when dry; however, yields and test weight will be low.

A major problem associated with the harvest of any corn killed by frost is the slow drying. If harvested as grain, this corn should be fed to livestock whenever possible. If harvesting for silage, remember corn killed by frost often looks much dryer than it is and needs to monitored.

To Remember Safety

In 1992, an annual average of 3.2 million people 16 years of age and older were employed in agricultural production in the United States.

According to a review of agricultural injury studies, between one third and one half of fatal farm injuries involved tractors.

Tractor overturns accounted for the majority of tractor-related deaths. A five-state study by University of Minnesota showed the following distribution of injury accidents:

- Livestock — 30 percent
- Machinery — 20 percent
- Tractors — 8 percent
- Surfaces and stairs — 7 percent
- Small power equipment — 6 percent
- Storage structures — 3 percent
- Chemicals — 1 percent.

There are an estimated 300 deaths to children younger than 20 years of age on U. S. farms each year. For every childhood injury death (not limited to childhood agricultural injury), there are approximately 42 hospitalizations and 1,120 emergency department visits.

These statistics remind us the importance of thinking and practicing safety. It takes time. However, that extra time to check for children around equipment, storing chemicals properly, respecting livestock, etc. could prevent a serious accident, lost time at hospital, recovering from an accident, or planning a funeral. Take time and be safe.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

BLESS THIS HOUSE

November 6, 1994

Background Scripture:
2 Samuel 7
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 86:1–12

The word "house" appears in 2 Samuel 7 twelve times, but the meaning of this word varies considerably. Actually, the writer of the book employs it as a play on words.

The first meaning of "house" comes when King David says to the prophet Nathan, "See now, I dwell in a house of cedar, but the ark of God dwells in a tent." David is referring to his royal palace. In light of his princely dwelling, he feels it is wrong for God's ark to be located in a mere tent. The tent had become a central feature of Israel's religious life during the 40 years of exodus.

At first, the prophet Nathan tells him it is all right for him to build God a "house"—a temple, but in a revelation from the Lord, he was told that God did not want David to build him a temple. The tent served God and the Israelites very well. If he needs a house, it will not be one build by human hands. Instead his "house" will be the human lives that are opened to him and in which he can live. (Jesus saw himself as the living temple in Mark 14:58, 15:29, and John 2:19)

THE EDIFICE COMPLEX

In religion there is always the danger of an edifice complex, focusing our loyalty and devotion upon a "house" of worship, rather than the one whom the "house" is intended to serve. Worst of all, the "house" we build may become a human attempt to limit God to a particular place and people. In our denominationalism and sectarianism we often become like the little boy who charged the neighbor kids admission to enter his backyard to see an eclipse.

This can be true, not only of the buildings we dedicate to God, but the institutions we fashion—denominations, ecclesiastical structures, priestly hierarchies, dogmas, and theological systems. Even the Bible can be elevated to a status and veneration that belong to God alone.

God tells Nathan to tell David that, instead of building him a house, the Lord would build him one: "and your house and your kingdom shall be made sure forever before me" (7:16). Here, "house" means, not a building, but a dynasty, David's descendants. The house God builds for David will be a continual living of the Lord in the lives of David and his heirs. In this sense, David's "house" will also be the Lord's "house."

A GREAT NATION

So, David prays, asking, "Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus far?" (7:19). Here, David uses "house" to refer to his family. How has his family merited God's special election and favor? And the same question may be asked of Israel itself: why did it merit God's favor? "What other nation on earth is like thy people Israel..." (7:23). For what reason were the Israelites to be his chosen people?

When we speak of a nation being great we refer to its political power, economic preeminence, or military might. But Israel had none of these. All Israel had was a consciousness of God. Ganse Little has termed them a "God intoxicated people...the repository and channel for the loftiest revelations of God's nature and purpose." What made Israel a "great" nation, was not the greatness of the people, but the greatness of the God who chose them.

At the very end of his prayer, David asks, "Now therefore may it please thee to bless the house of thy servant, that it may continue for ever before thee..." (7:29). Here the "house" is David's, present and future, and his prayer is on the very highest order. Not for wealth, power or prosperity, but that his family might ever be close to the Lord.

So may we pray for God to bless our own houses.

Pa. State Grange Holds Annual Convention

al boards.

A member for 52 years, Hiller is currently a member a Bottle Run Grange No. 1301, of Lycoming County. In the past he has been master of the West Branch Grange, Shemanata Grange in Perry County, and a member of the state Grange executive committee and coordinator of the state leadership/membership program.

Also, William Steel, of Beaver County, who was reelected for 2 years as overseer (vice president).

Others reelected to office include Stanley Gruber, of Stoney Pointe Grange No. 1694, steward; Jennifer Cummins, Big Beaver Grange No. 1578, lady assistant steward; Patricia Rudy, Mt. Nebo Grange No. 1872, state chaplain; Anna May Nauss, Valley Grange No. 1360, state treasurer; Dina Zug, Walker Grange No. 786, secretary, Ronnie Harris, Iona Grange No. 272, gate keeper; Mary Ann Keith, Lincoln Grange No. 914, ceres (Roman goddess of agriculture); Ruth Osborne, Morning Star No. 1271, pomona (Roman goddess of fruit trees); Nettie Martsolf, Jefferson Grange No. 1373, flora (Roman goddess of flowers); and William Vernam, Jackson Grange No. 1506, executive committee member.

Newly elected were Donald Evens, of Hartslog Valley Grange No. 375, lecturer; and Henry Seidel, of Virginville Grange No. 1832, assistant steward.

Policy Adopted

During the Grange's annual banquet, members set state policy based on the cumulative emphasis of local wishes as expressed by delegates.

As a result of this session, some of the key policy set include positions on tort reform, property owners' rights, agricultural zoning exemptions, and ag nusiance regulations.

More specifically, the Grange policy seeks tort reform by working with the Chamber of Business and Industry, the Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association, the Pa. Medical Society, the Pa. Defense Institute and agricultural interests to establish a policy so there are fewer interpretations of the law and that, where punitive damages are to be levied, that the proceeds go to a fund to help pay legal fees for the poor and indigent, rather than to the plaintiff.

The goal of the tort reform policy is to reverse the high and ever-increasing cost of liability insurance which contributes to a rise in health care costs, discourages innovation by business, increases costs of goods and services, and makes it difficult for some to pay for insurance.

It is the position of the Grange that the existing state tort liability system has been failing to provide reasonable compensation to people injured by the negligence of others, at a reasonable cost.

The Grange also seeks greater protection from liability lawsuits for property owners, especially if the land is properly posted against trespassing, or otherwise effectively fenced.

The Grange also seeks a tort policy that would make the plaintiff pay for all defense costs and penalties when a defendant is found "not guilty."

As far as agriculturally zoned land, the Grange supports legislation that would exempt such properties from other local ordinances which would unduly restrict agricultural development and/or practices, as long as those practices and development posed no danger to public safety.

In relation to that, the Grange has a long-standing advocacy of limits to nusiance lawsuits against agriculture. At the same time, the Grange strongly supports proposed legislation that would require prospective property buyers to be informed that, if the property they are considering for purchase is adjacent to agriculturally zoned land, that they are informed that they can expect to be subject to dust and odor associated with farming practices.

According to Brenda Shambaugh, Grange legislative liason, "We hope this piece of legislation (House Bill 2388) will alleviate potential problems when non-agricultural citizens move next to agricultural operations, by informing potential neighbors of the farming activities in proximity to their new dwelling."

Granger Of Year

In other business, the winner of the Granger of the Year award was Judy Hetzel, of Mt. Nebo, Allegheny County. Wife of Robin Hetzel and mother to Rebecca, 5, and Brittany, 2, Judy is the third person in her family to win the honor, following in the footsteps of her father Carl Rudy who won the award in 1984, and her mother Pat Rudy, who won in 1990.

She was presented with a plaque during the annual All-Granger banquet.

Hetzel, who serves as a lecturer for her Grange and who is the master of Allegheny County Pomona Grange No. 42, is also a member of the State Grange Energy Committee. She has been active in Grange all her life.

"I've been raised in the Grange family with my family," she said. "By the time I was 14 years old, I knew the ritual by heart. I stayed with the Grange in the youth department because it was fun and we always had a good time."

In addition, Hetzel is also involved in other community activities and projects. She is a member of the Sewickley United Methodist Church, and serves as its choir director, organist and Sunday school teacher, she is president of the Methodist Women's Society, Learning Tree Pre-School Executive Committee; and the Quaker Valley Parent-Teacher Association. She also volunteers once a week at the Quaker Valley Elementary School.

"I firmly believe you can find the time to do the things you really want to do," she said. "There is always time tomorrow to mow the grass or clean the house. You have to make time to do the things you enjoy doing."

A former Grange youth princess, Hetzel also was a youth chairman of the year winner, and also a former winner of the state's talent contest in music.

In other business, the Grange named the winners in its subordinate community service program. They are Berks Countys' Virginville Grange No. 1832, first; Bucks County's Middletown Grange No. 684, second; and Greene County's Harvey's Grange No. 1444.

The pomona grange winners were Berks County's Berks No. 43, first; Chester/Delaware counties No. 3, second; and Jefferson No. 20, third.

According to Miriam Forney, state community service coordinator, the awards recognize the Granges that have made significant contributions to their communities. They are based on a notebook kept during the contest year, which include written articles about the Grange projects, photographs of the event and media coverage.

In this year's talent contest, Gina Gallimore was first place in the Grange's "Sign a Song" contest, which rewards those adept at using sign language to convey the lyrics of a song.

Gallimore is a member of Adams County's Battlefield Grange No. 2086. She also was the first place contestant in the public speaking contest for those aged 19 to 25, and first in the group category for signing a song, signing with Wanda Gallimore.

Other talent contest winners inlcude Ila Mae McMillin, of Lawrence County's Westfield Grange No. 1514 who earned a first place in public speaking among those aged 26 to 35.

The first place winners advance to the 1995 Mid-Atlantic Grange Conference, set to be held in West Virginia in April.

Calf To Be Presented At Lancaster Banquet

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

KINZERS (Lancaster Co.) — A growthy September calf from the KEJAN Registered Holstein farm of Kenneth Beiler and family will be presented to a youth winner at the Lancaster County Holstein Banquet to be held Thursday in Mt. Joy. For the last several years a calf has been donated to an intermediate youth in the association who has the top record book score. The calf is sponsored by a combined effort between the association and a Holstein breeder to encourage young people in the youth program.

The calf this year has a deep pedigree with outstanding type, fat, and protein. The dam is Good Plus with VG udder and more than 1,000 lbs of fat. The next two dams are Very Good, and both have Excellent udders and high test. A maternal sister to the calf is already 83 points with an Excellent udder and a good record in progress.

Starting time for the baked ham loaf banquet is 7 p.m. at the Country Table Restaurant. The meeting will include reports from state and local officials and William Rhoads will entertain with an evening of music including a "sing-a-long." Tickets may still be ordered by calling Nelson Wenger (717-664-7233) or Jack Coleman (717-687-6844).

In trial after trial, Promise has lived up to its name, producing added tonnage over check varieties, with many stands lasting into the fifth year And Promise demonstrates high resistance to the Northeast's most common alfalfa diseases.

With high yields, high disease resistance and the Hoffman name behind it, there aren't any better choices. That's our Promise!

The 1994 DHIA testing year officially ended on September 30, 1994 and the annual banquet and meeting is fast approaching. If you are not presently in one of the DHIA programs, you should give serious thought to enrolling. At a time when profits on dairy farms are slim, farmers question spending money on a milk testing program. However, the fact is, during times of financial pressure, DHIA can be a valuable tool toward determining which cows are making you money and which ones should be culled.

Chester County DHIA Board of Directors, after evaluating all options available and with the approval of the membership, conditionally merged with PA DHIA in May. The main overriding factor for this decision was to save Chester County dairy farmers money while continuing to provide quality service. The new rates, particularly for owner/sampler herds, are considerably lower. Standard 2X DHIA rates have stayed about the same, while AM/PM herds have realized some cost savings. Chester County has always had a low participation rate in the owner/sampler program because the rates were too high—that is not true today. Removing one or two of those big eat/no milk cows or a high somatic count cow that is costing you your quality bonus can pay for the testing program. If one of these complete testing programs fits your operation, now is the time to sign up. Contact one of the following Chester County DHIA technicians:

Patty Becker 717-355-9262
Dean Cheeks 610-932-9180
Wendy Harris 717-442-9648
Gerald Miller 610-932-9047
Robert Poole 610-932-9047

Now that is not the end of the options available from DHIA today. PA DHIA recognizes that standard programs are not needed by all farmers. On-farm computers and consulting services are supplying milk weights, breeding records and other information in the 1990s. Therefore, low cost testing programs have been developed to supply the "missing link" in other commercial management systems. Herd managers can have samples tested for either butterfat, protein or somatic cell count; or for all three, depending on current needs. This data may be useful as an addition to your current management system or may be used infrequently to pinpoint problem areas. Some potential uses include...

- SCC testing may pinpoint problem cows causing high bulk-tank counts or loss of quality bonus.
- Butterfat & protein testing may determine which cows in your herd are not producing to their ability.
- Periodic SCC testing may be used to monitor the effectiveness of mastitis and dry treatments.

Contractual arrangements for testing as many samples as desired must be made prior to the actual testing of samples. Contact the Division of Field Services at 1-800-DHI-TEST to make these arrangements.

Another excellent alternative PA DHIA program is PRIME. It was designed for producers who want management records with a minimum of effort and cost and where the full range services (DHI, AM/PM & DHIR) are complicated or expensive. Choices within the PRIME program include...

- Weigh & sample each cow each month, one milking or two.
- Just weigh milk with no samples taken.
- Take samples every month, every other month or even just four times a year.
- Charges are on the animals on the sheet the day of sampling.
- The report contains whatever information you request—SCC, reproductive, feeding recommendations and/or herd average. If this type of DHIA program appeals to you, call one of the Chester County technicians listed above or dial 1-800-DHI-TEST.

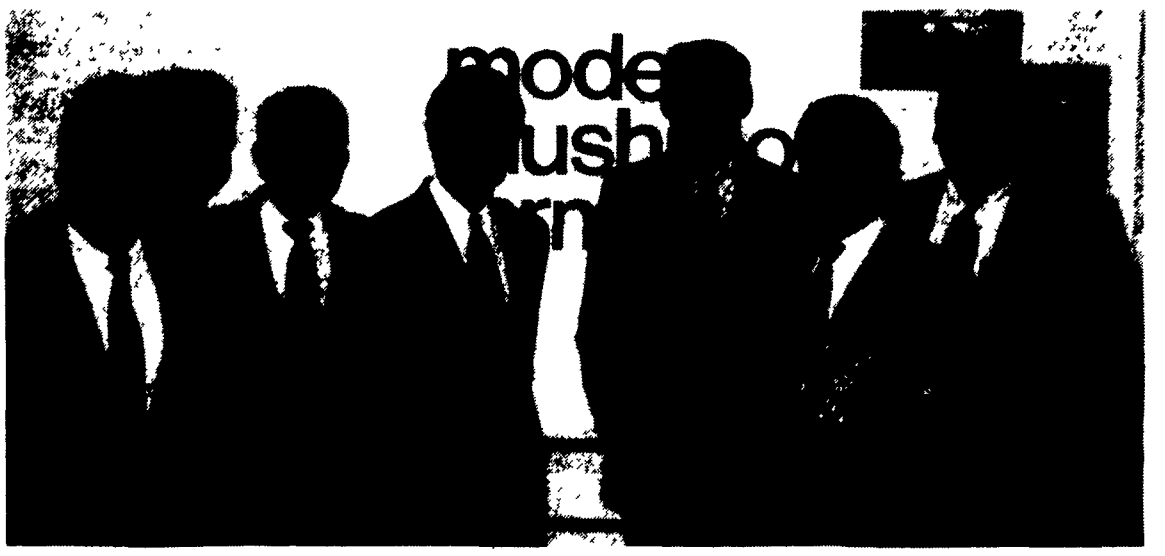
Daschle Visits Chester Farm To Support Wofford



TOUGHKENAMON (Chester Co.) — Senator Tom Daschle (D-SD) campaigned on behalf of Harris Wofford in a swing through Bucks and Chester Counties Tuesday. In Chester Co. Daschle toured Modern Mushroom Farms and praised Wofford's commitment to Pennsylvania farmers and agriculture issues in a speech to farm employees. Daschle serves on the Senate Agriculture and Finance Committees and has worked with Wofford in the Senate.

"From the very beginning, Senator Wofford came to the Senate knowing the importance of trade and agricultural issues to Pennsylvania, particularly the need to expand trade and open foreign markets for American farm product," Daschle said. "He formed an Agriculture Advisory Committee to ensure that he plays a pro-active leadership role and has a direct line of communication into the agriculture community to hear and understand their needs."

Lebanon County Honors Conservationists

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Two awards were presented Tuesday by the Lebanon County Conservation District during its annual awards luncheon, held at the Lebanon Agricultural Center in North Cornwall Township.

The awards are presented by the county conservation district board of directors and staff in recognition of the outstanding efforts by citizens and citizen groups to make a beneficial change to the quality and health of life for county residents.

Two awards were presented — educatior of the year, and conservationist of the year.

Honored as the conservation educator of the year was Susan Bucks, a teacher in the Palmyra School District, who for years has been helping students get involved in understanding the living and physical world that surrounds them through conservation district educational programs, in addition to her own.

According to Charles Wertz, conservation district manager, Bucks is a teacher in the gifted student program at Palmyra and is credited with involving her students in a broad range of environmental matters ranging from educating first graders about the environment to involving students in efforts to clean up local streams and roads.

Bucks' students also have gained insight into more wide-ranging issues, such as the Chesapeake Bay, wetlands, rainforests and landuse.

A group of county citizens was also honored during the luncheon for its efforts to raise funds for the construction of a new dam breast at the Ebenezer Dam, located along Rt. 72, north of Lebanon, after the dam breast was declared unsafe by DER in 1982.

A non-profit organization was formed by concerned citizens who wanted to preserve the recreational lake that had been widely used in the past for fishing, swimming and boating. Other historic dams in the county deemed unsafe by DER were breached and never repaired about the same time.

For 10 years, the board members of the volunteer organization held fundraisers that generated a total of $288,047.56.

Inkind contributions of time and equipment also helped make the dam-repair project a reality. No state or federal funds were used in restoring the dame and lake.

In 1992, the group deeded the property to North Lebanon Township, as had been planned.

In 1994, the state Fish and Boat Commission stocked the lake with trout.

Accepting the award Tuesday were Carl Heisey, Harlan Bross, Edward Arnold, Paul Martin, Rachel Heisey, Harriet Ponting, and Darlene Martin.

Accepting the Lebanon County conservationist of the year award on behalf of the Ebenzer Union Canal Dam Inc. non-profit group and supporters, are, from the left front row, Rachel Heisey, Harriety Ponting, and Darlene Martin. In the back row, from the left, are Carl Heisey, Harlan Bross, Edward Arnold, and Paul Martin.

According to Wertz, many others not mentioned or present for the luncheon are also credited with helping to restore the dam, including Edwin Zellers, Russell Darkes, and Harvey Heagy. Ivan Ponting and David "Red" Young were remembered posthumously for their contributions.

According to the group, DER was very cooperative with efforts to restore the dam.

Susan Bucks accepts the Lebanon County conservation educator of the year award.

Farmers Markets To Open At Turnpike Plazas

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) is soliciting Pennsylvania farmers to operate stands at two turnpike service plazas, offering travelers an opportunity to purchase quality homegrown Pennsylvania produce without leaving the toll road.

Back in June this year, Rep. Sheila Miller (R-129th) introduced legislation, H.B. 2880, into the General Assembly, to allow for the establishment of markets on select sites of the Pennsylvania Turnpike (see Lancaster Farming, July 23, A24).

While the bill remains under review in the House Committee on Agriculture and Rural Affairs, the PDA has selected Sideling Hill Service Plaza in Fulton County and the Allentown Service Plaza in Lehigh County as pilot projects organized by the PDA and the Turnpike Commission, according to a news release provided by the PDA.

Miller told Lancaster Farming that she was suprised that action was taken by the PDA on establishing the markets, since the bill is still under review in committee. But she noted that she hopes that the new administration remains committed to ensuring the farmers' markets open to provide state produce to the more than 900,000 people who stop at the Sideling Hill and the more than 1 million customers who visit the Allentown service plazas yearly.

She indicated that if the commitment isn't sustained, she intends to reintroduce the bill in January.

"We're grateful that the Turnpike Commission is offering our farmers a new marketing opportunity," said Boyd E. Wolff, state agriculture secretary. "They can open stands at these busy service plazas where the space will be provided."

Farmers who are interested in setting up market stands at either service plaza should contact Sharon Fulginiti at the PDA (717) 787-5086 or Jeff Patton at the Lehigh County Cooperative Extension Office, (610) 391-9840.

departments, and the Junior Grange, handed out awards to members who have performed outstanding community service, or won departmental contests during the past year.

All of the top awards are given to the leaders of local Granges that have excelled in competition with other Granges. There are two types of local Granges: one is a county Grange, called a "pomona;" the other is based more on local membership and is called a "subordinate."

The Women's Activities Department sponsors various contests in which members make items which are then donated to charitable organizations. That group named its two local Grange "directors of the year."

The director of the year award is given to the person whose Grange completed the most community service projects that are part of the department's contest program.

The Subordinate Grange Women's Activities Director of the Year was Joyce Ross, of Harmony Grange No. 1112. The Pomona Grange Women's Activities Director of the Year was Grace Mitchell, of Washington County Pomona No. 16.

In the youth awards, Tim Schaeffer, of Pioneer Grange No. 1777, was named Subordinate youth chairperson of the year, while Heather Schlegel, of Berks County Pomona No. 43 was named Pomona youth chairperson of the year. It was the second consecutive award for Schlegel.

Another annual youth award is presented to the junior grange (for members aged 5 to 14 years old) organization which has done the most community service. The top junior Grange was Kutztown Junior Grange No. 439, and the award was accepted by its leader, Jane Adams, of Kutztown.

New GM Named At Eastern Milk

SYRACUSE, NY — John T. Siglow has been named general manager of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative Association, effective immediately.

He succeeds Michael H. Donovan, who had held the top management spot at Eastern for over a decade.

Board President Lewis Gardner said the appointment coincides with plans to position the co-op for strategic growth into the year 2000. He noted that Siglow "has racked up an impressive record" as Eastern's operations manager for the past two years.

"Last fiscal year," Gardner said, "he avoided major losses for our organization during the seasonal 'flush' (when milk supplies were heavier than usual), saving the association nearly a quarter of a million dollars."

"At the same time," the board president added, "our customer base expanded over 15 percent, while volumes of milk increased nearly 11 percent."

Gardner also offered praise for the former general manager's "years of dedicated service." He said Donovan "guided the association during the turbulent early 1980s, through the growth periods of 1984-1988, and on through the recession years of the 1990s.

John T. Siglow

"We all wish Mike and his family well on his new endeavors," Gardner said. Siglow has over 20 years of experience in the dairy industry, with 15 of those years at another cooperative, Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI) of Strongsville, Ohio. He served in a number of positions there, starting as a field representative and rising to senior management. His last position at MMI was as manager of support activities. Just before joining Eastern, Siglow was general manager of Producers' Equalization Agency (PEA), also in Ohio.

Siglow holds an MBA from Cleveland State University and a bachelor's in business administration from Youngstown State University.

Siglow and his wife, Betty, and two daughters, Jamie and Michelle, live in Marcellus, NY, near Syracuse where Eastern is headquartered.

Eastern Milk operates in nine Northeast states, annually marketing 1.9 billion pounds of milk for 3,200 member farm families. The majority of those farmers are concentrated in Pennsylvania, New York, Vermont and Delaware.

sustained production, mastitis managements, overall somatic cell linear score, and reproductive management, including average days open, services per pregnancy, and age at first calving.

David and Martha Pool are the operators of Fantasyland Farm, a 60-milking cow dairy they run on an 140-acre operation near Bernville the couple rents from Reuben and Lillian Getz.

The couple has three children, Lynette, 14, Elliot, 10, and 8-week-old Caitlyn.

The two oldest are involved in 4-H dairy projects and Lynette showed the first place senior 2-year-old at Kutztown, which was the reserve grand champion of the open show and the county 4-H roundup. She said it was an accomplishment after recovering from an accident in which she was struck by a van.

Elliot also showed cattle and had an intermediate yearling that earned him some recognition.

The Pools moved to their present location last November from another nearby, but smaller farm they rented, after moving to Pennsylvania from southern New Jersey, where David was raised on a 100-cow dairy farm.

As of this week, the registered Holstein 60-cow herd averaged 26,841 pounds of milk, with 957 pounds, or 3.6 percent, fat, and 875 pounds, or 3.3 percent, protein.

According to David, in one year's time, the herd average incrased more than 3,000 pounds of milk.

Pool said that at the previous rental farm, he and his wife milked 42 cows in a tie-stall facility, and had a rolling average of 23,868 pounds milk, 3.5 percent fat and 3.1 percent protein.

They were feeding a totally mixed ration (TMR) at the old rental farm, but the biggest change was in nutritionists and raw feed, according to David.

At the previous farm, as part of the rental agreement, the Pools used the landlord's nutritional services and grains and forages.

Since moving to the Getz farm, the Pools have been using Tim Kissling as a nutritionist. Kissling is an independent nutritionist who also raises dairy cattle, and who happens to live nearby.

According to Pool, Kissling has helped tremendously in getting the feed balances correct and in being able to correct quickly, without attempting to sell a branded product.

"We owe a lot to Tim," David said. "He's on the ball and he doesn't sell anything but himself."

In addition, Kissling and Pool both do body scoring of the herd so that his cattle stay in top shape while producing high quantities of quality milk.

"(Body scoring is) probably one of the most important things to Tim," David said of body scoring. "I haven't had a problem with condition, even with high production."

A TMR mixer and an automatic feeding cart, along with a home-ground top-dress are part of the feeding program. David checks moisture content when changes in loads of forages occur, or other changes seem to occur.

Somatic cell count had been a little bit of a problem at the new farm for the Pools, until switching to a different teat pre- and post-milking solution. Also changed was that the first teat dip, which didn't seem to be as effective, employed a dip cup application. The treatment the Pools use now is sprayed on.

Right now the herd's running an average of about a 170,000 somatic cell count.

As is well-known, the infectious disease "strawberry wart" has been affecting herds around the state and throughout the dairy industry. When it first appeared on the scene several years ago, experts were unsure whether the disease was infectious or not and what could be done to treat it.

The disease has affected the

Pa.DHIA Herd Management Award

herd at Fantasyland Farm, but they have found that a tetracylcine foot bath has been helping to eliminate reduce the negative aspects of that yet-to-be conquered disease, as well as following a regular, quarterly hoof-trimming schedule.

David said he considers foot care to be very important in maintaining herd health and steady milk production.

Martha was raised on a dairy farm near Kutztown and both husband and wife share work responsibilities, although with Caitlyn recently born, Martha has her hands full.

The couple use a computer and dairy management program to help with financial records and cow records.

Also, the Pools said they haven't had much of a reproduction problem, which is also watched carefully.

In fact, breeding cows is one of the major marketing strategies of Fantasyland Farm, and the Pools have about 10 percent of the herd as indexing flush cows for the marketing of embryos and bulls.

Currently one of their bulls is on lease to Tarus, the artificial insemination company. That bull is an Aerostar son out of an Excellent Mark daughter that was David's favorite cow until she died this summer giving birth to twins.

The grandam is a 92-EEE Bell daughter with more than three records over 30,000 pounds of milk and 175,000 pounds lifetime. Dave said he is trying to stress that cow family in his herd.

He said he also purchased a heifer from Holstein breeder Andy Stoltzfus, of Morgantown — Caernarvon Prelude Jasmine — and plans to use her for embryo-transfer work. He bought her as a choice of flush and she is breeding age now.

He already has a bull under contract with Landmark Genetics and has two other contracts pending.

Of the rest of the herd, about half are used as embryo recipients, while 40 percent of the herd is bred to carry on bloodlines.

David said that while culling a herd is important, he has does most because of three reasons — dairy, feet and leg problems, or mastitis. Last year he culled 25 head.

"I don't keep them around if they are not profitable. But very seldom do I cull for production, especially 2-year-olds. An older cow, a 3-year-old or 4-year-old, (is culled) if not up to herd average."

He said the other major reason for culling cows at the Pool farm is because they just get too old. The oldest cow in the herd is a 9-year-old that has been bred back.

David said that the farm has received a 108.1 BAA, and has a couple of Excellent cows, two junior 3-year-olds, that scored Very Good 88, and five new Very Good 2-year-olds.

There are couple of red-and-white Holsteins in the herd because, "I had a fascination with red-and-whites a couple of years ago," David said, "but I'm getting out." He said he is not breeding for red and white because of an apparent lack of significant production in the line, compared to black and whites.

Ironically, at the same time his red-and-white cow "Chubby" has made 31,000 pounds of milk as a 2-year-old, and made 130 pounds on her first test as a 3-year-old.

Across the barn aisle from Chubby is the stall of her full ET-sister, "Cherio," which made 32,000 pounds in 365 days.

A maternal sister to the red cows is daughter Lynette's next show cow, a black and white.

The Pools said they hope that someday they can eventually purchase the farm from the Getzes. The older 62-tie-stall bank barn is even currently being modified. It originally used to stand 112, but one end is being converted to be used for heifer pens, while several box stalls at the other end are used for maternity pens, and for temporary housing of calves.

(The series is continued next week with a report on the Campbell's herd management.)

of the Reading Eagle-Times newspaper, said the businesses "are very similar in many aspects."

Firestine exchanged places for a day with Francine Scoboria, a reporter/writer for the Reading Eagle-Times. Scoboria said she had never been on a farm previously "for more than 10 minutes." She toured the Firestine's produce operation and had a chance to help unload a truck of pumpkins at a nursery.

While on the farm, Soboria said it was "the first time I was in a field of cows — I was a little nervous." But she learned the cows were "sweet, gentle animals." She realized that there was a lot of spookies in a ton, and there were six tons to the truck. "I'll never look at a pumpkin the same way, because I know there is a lot of work involved," she said.

Also at the banquet, public relations awards were presented by the farm-city council to the Berks County Pomona Grange, represented by Ruth McQuate, and to George Landis, Reading Eagle-Times ag reporter.

Lancaster Ag-Industry Banquet Set

The Honorable Samuel E. Hayes, Jr., well-known retired Pennsylvania lawmaker and legislative leader, will be the keynote speaker for the 1994 Ag-Industry Banquet. As House Majority Leader and Whip, Hayes provided pivotal leadership in the areas of education and agricultural policy. His speech will address the question "What Factors Will Determine the Future of Lancaster County Agriculture?" Hayes currently serves on the board of directors for Pennsylvania 2000 and is a member of the PA State Board of Education.

Held on Tuesday, November 22 at the Host Resort Inn, this annual event attracts representatives of all elements of the agricultural community and representatives from the non-farm sector as well who come together in a "Salute To Lancaster County Agriculture." As part of that salute, the 1994 George C. Delp Award will be presented and new Century Farms in the county will be recognized. For details or to register, call Jay Howes at the Chamber (397-3531).

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My parents had seven girls. However, over the years two died and now only four live in Pennsylvania as one has her home in Michigan. Even so, we try to get together several times a year for holidays or a picnic.

Thus, we recently were invited by my youngest sister, Florence, to a "mystery day" that she and her husband planned for us. We and our spouses had breakfast at her home and then drove to Harrisburg in a van.

Our first stop was the Capitol Building which was dedicated in 1906. This 65-acre Capitol Complex contains state office buildings which house Executive, Legislative, and Judicial branches of government. This building is richly ornamented and the five story exterior is of Vermont granite and the roof is of green glazed tile. It covers two acres of ground. Each door at the main entrance weighs one ton. I cannot begin to describe all the statues and art work that we saw in the rotunda, the Senate Chambers, and the House of Representatives. It is well worth a guided tour.

Next we walked to "The State Museum of Pennsylvania." Here we saw everything from dinosaurs to Indian villages and from geology to military history. There was too much to see in a few hours.

After lunch we walked around on City Island and then drove to a ferry on the Susquehanna River. However, we missed one crossing and had to wait for the next trip. It was a time to relax but it did cause us to miss seeing an exhibit of Ned Smith's art at Millersburg. He drew nearly 120 paintings for "Pennsylvania Game News."

Our long day concluded with a theatrical production in a one-room school house. Even though we got to bed at 1 a.m. we managed to go to church the next morning.

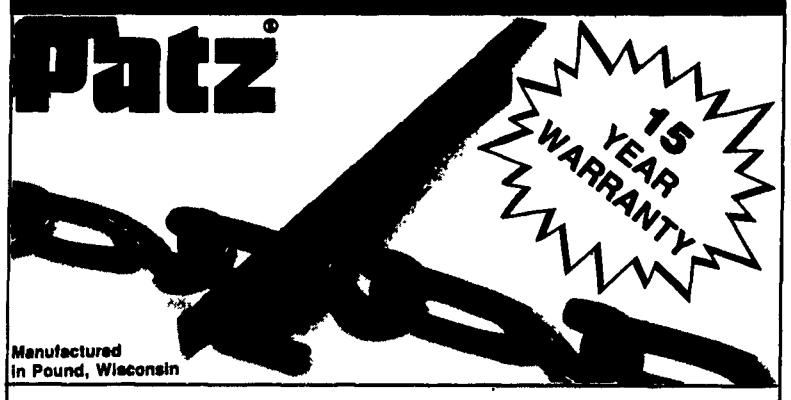
Patz®



Here is something often overlooked...

Only Patz gives you 45 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain, resulting in a chain so good that others are attempting to copy it.

Many Patz Gutter Cleaner chains are still working well after more than 30 years of use.

After the Patz patent on hook-and-eye chain expired, some other companies have attempted to copy the Patz chain. Some promote 10- and 12-year warranties on chain—but they have not yet had 10 or 12 years of experience with hook-and-eye chain.

Patz has continued to improve its chain for 45 years with special-formula steel, special forging techniques and special steel hardening processes.

Rely on the proven, long-life chain. Patz provides a 15-year chain warranty because so many chains are working well long after 15 years of use.

Better yet, your Patz chain warranty is backed up by a solid, reliable company that has been serving farmers for 45 years with the same family ownership.

Insist on Patz chain!

What thousands of dairyman know: Patz chain is your best buy!

Consuming Thoughts

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Many of us are already thinking about the holidays. We want to get the house ready for the friends and family members who will be visiting. One area of concern to the cook will be the kitchen Will it pass Aunt Esther's white glove inspection? More importantly, could it pass a food safety inspection? If not, these guidelines will get your kitchen in tip-top shape for the holidays.

Start with the freezer. Is frozen-over or jam-packed with food? If so, it will not hold frozen meat and poultry at safe freezer temperature 0 degrees F or below. When you defrost the freezer, examine frozen items carefully and discard foods that have changed in appearance or texture. When returning food to the freezer, check package dates and sort items so that you can use them within recommended storage times.

Next, the refrigerator. If you have leftover meat and poultry dishes, use them as soon as possible. These foods can be stored in the refrigerator from three to four days. Fresh meat and poultry should be used within one to three days. Also check the "sell-by" or "use-by" date on mayonnaise, salad dressing and other foods which need refrigeration. Throw away outdated, moldey and obviously spoiled foods.

To get rid of the odor that may linger from spoiled food, wash the refrigerator with baking soda and water and put a box of baking soda in it to absorb odors.

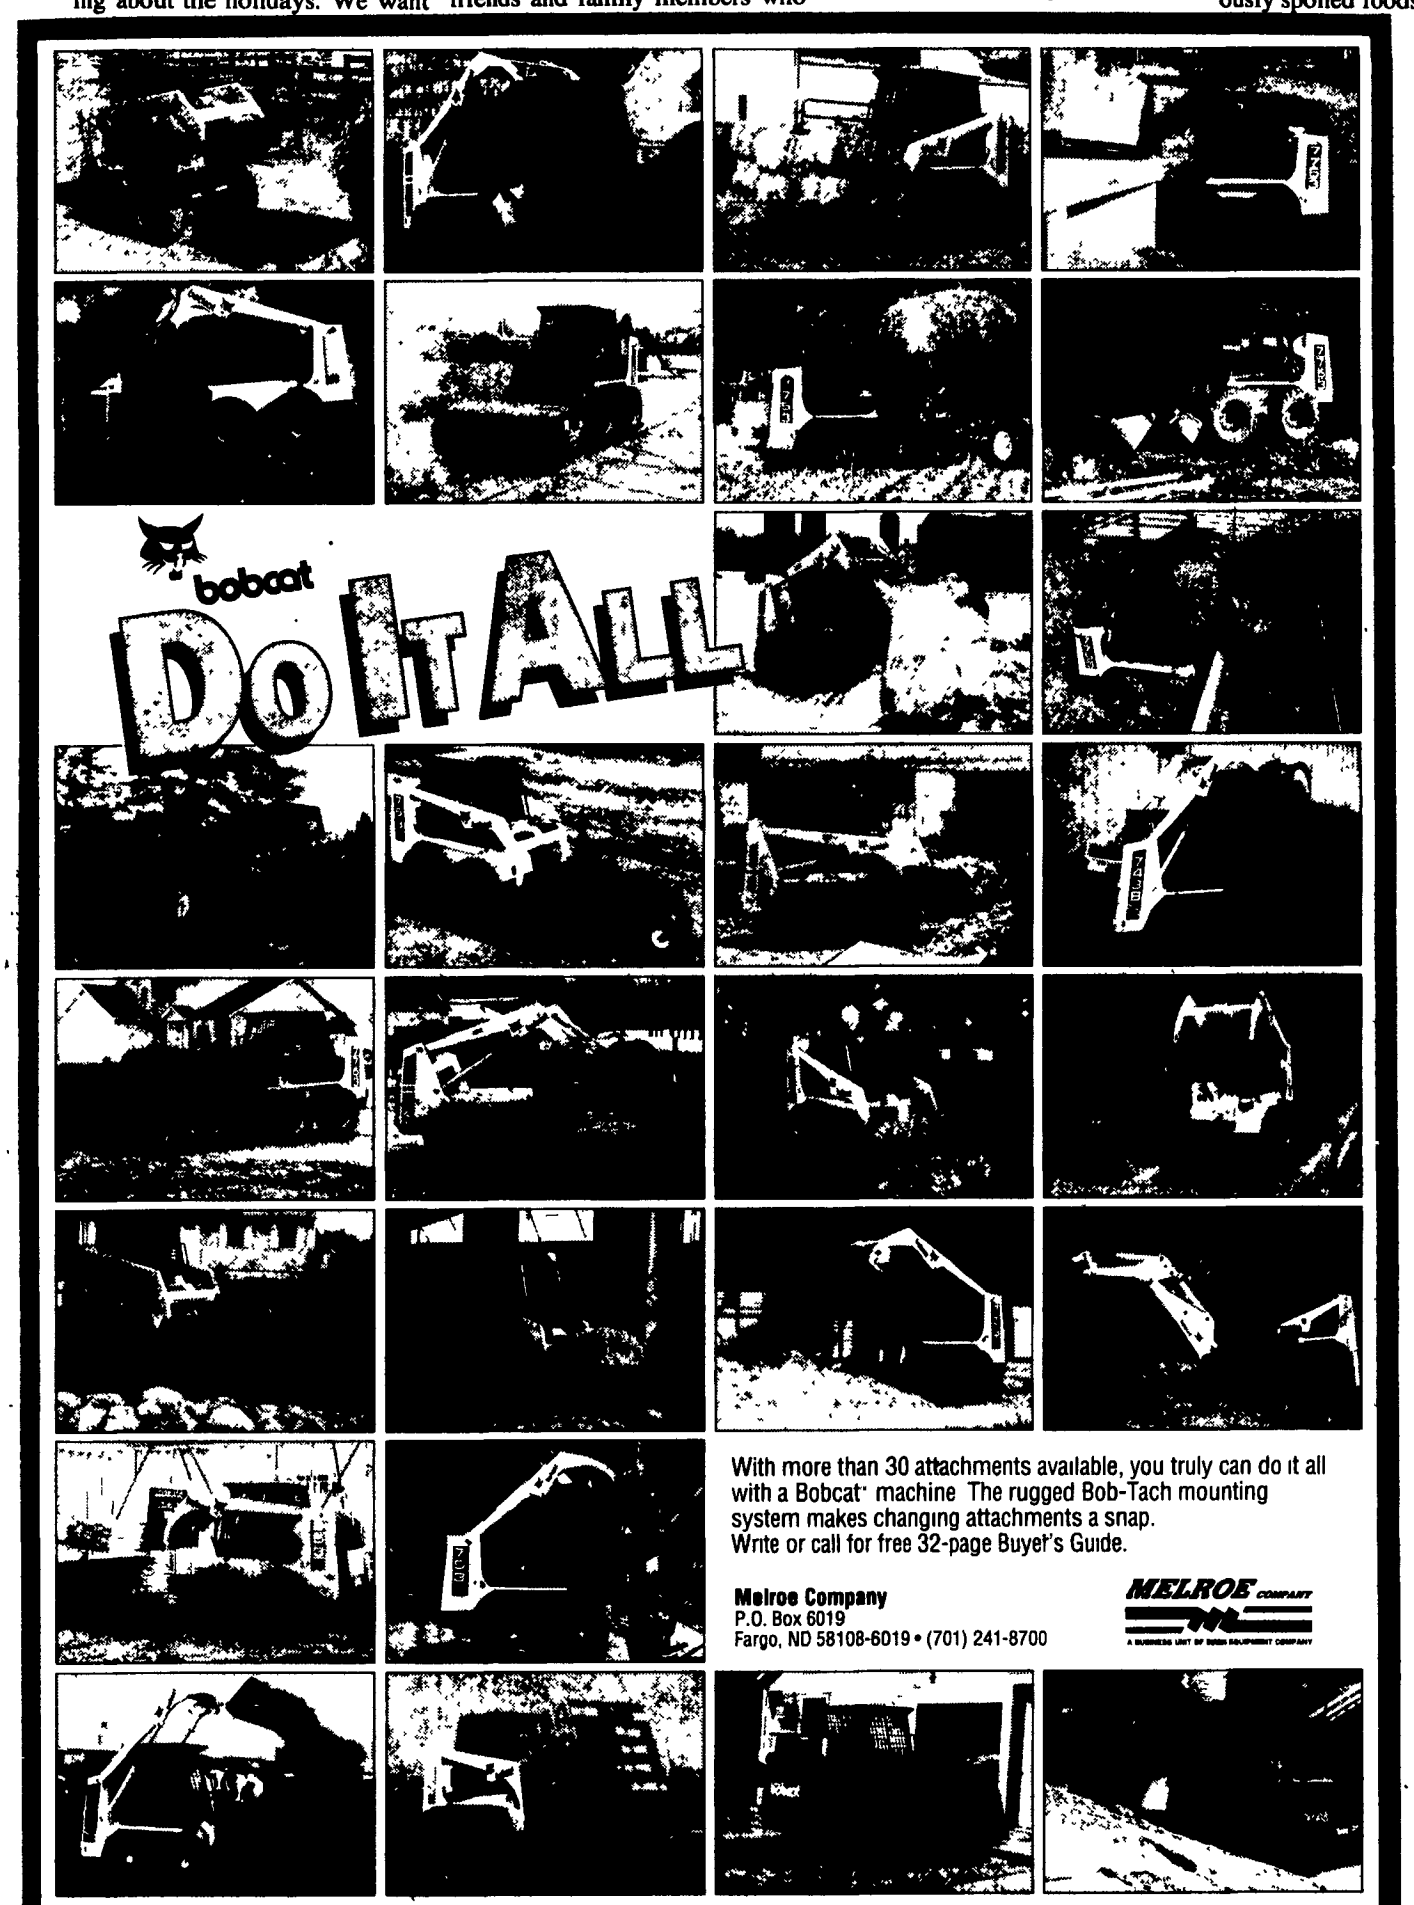
To store food safely in the freshly cleaned refrigerator be sure that the temperature is set at 40 degrees F or below to prevent most bacterial growth. Tightly cover all foods and use them within the recommended storage time. Don't overload the refrigerator. Cold air must be able to circulate to keep foods at optimal temperatures.

Countertops, sinks an utensils need extra care. To keep bacteria from spreading from raw to cooked foods, wash the countertop, sink and utensils with hot soapy water after they have been used to prepare raw meat and poultry. Carefully scrub, clean and sanitize cutting boards since bacteria can harbor in the grooves left by knives. Also, wash kitchen linens often and throw away old sponges.

Since bacteria are hitchhikers, be safe and stop bacteria in their tracks by washing, rinsing, then sanitizing. Use this disinfecting solution to clean and sanitize your Kitchen: Combine 2 tablespoons liquid bleach and 1 gallon warm water.

Kitchen appliances should work properly. Use the oven thermometer to check the temperature in your conventional oven. Use a meat thermometer to cook meat and poultry to the proper internal temperatures. Poultry is thoroughly cooked at 180 degrees F to 185 degrees; beef an other meats should reach 160 degrees F.

Check the microwave oven too. Stale food particles left in the microwave can interfere with cooking time. To clean the microwave oven, place a mixture of lemon juice and water inside the oven and turn it on. The steam will condense on the oven surface and make food much easier to remove. The lemon juice will absorb odors.



With more than 30 attachments available, you truly can do it all with a Bobcat® machine The rugged Bob-Tach mounting system makes changing attachments a snap.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

But I don't have a thing to wear.

Thus I debated, rummaging in the dark of early morning through a drawer stuffed with short-sleeved tee-shirts and sleeveless, cotton blouses.

Appropriate clothes for late-afternoon milkings in a barn warmed from the body heat of a herd of dairy cows. Not so appropriate, though, on a morning when lingering tomatoes shiver under a frost blanket and ice crystals accent the fading zinnia blossoms. And when the turtle-necked, long-sleeved stuff is all still stuck away in some closet.

The "in-between" season, fashion consultants sometimes call these weather transition periods. Cool, chilly mornings, warming by noon, almost hot in the barn at 4:30 when we start milking chores and temperatures fading as fast as the sun by finish time. Added to a shaded old house that—unless the woodstove is burning—is chilly inside when the sun is warm outside and warm inside when the night is brisk.

Fashion designers may take credit for inventing the layered look. However, this popular style of dressing actually evolved from generations of farm wives alternately piling on and shucking off clothes, dependent on the whims of sunshine, shadows, and whatever chore The Farmer lined up next.

For instance, you might be out on a pleasant, fall afternoon raking leaves out of the yard, basking in the warm sunshine. Ten minutes later, seated on an open-air tractor seat, helping drag a swamped grain truck out of some mucky wet spot in a low-lying field, you're wishing between chattering teeth that you'd added a layer or two on the way.

Or you've been sent to the field to disk cornstalks on a gray, sullen November afternoon. After cocooning yourself in thermal underwear, wool socks, insulated coveralls, ear muffs and mittens, you find yourself in a tractor cab—solar heated when the sun bursts through the cloud cover. And wishing you could dispense with a layer or two without losing your dignity.

Conveniently for this layer-loving farm wife, the clothing residue of two now-grown children lingers on in our basement, barn-dressing-room. Comfort and practicality long ago edged out vanity as my prime motivation when selecting a farm wardrobe. A variety of sweaters, sweatshirts, shirts old jackets that didn't "suit" and were left behind by the kids reinforced that trend.

Which is why I have two identical gray sweatshirts embossed with cow head-ends on the front and cow tail-ends on the back—except that the sleeves of one are chopped off at half-mast. That's the preferred one for milking, since no cuffs dangle in the udder-sanitizing water and their roominess allows for a long-sleeved turtle-neck top layered beneath.

When a sweatshirt is too hot, a matching set of lightweight, navy and white sweaters our daughter brought home from a rural electric cooperative youth conference offer an alternative. Layered over one of the assorted cow-theme tee-shirts she likewise bequeathed to me for barn garb.

One of the benefits of a six-foot-plus son is that his hand-me-downs tend to be sized "for tall men." A worn, quilted red-plaid-flannel shirt not quite good enough to haul along to college is a perfect example. Warmer than most jackets, its oversized, extra length covers my legs almost to the knees and prevents that cold rush of air that hits your back when bending over in a short jacket.

On really chilly days, a patched, extra large, synthetic down vest emblazoned with an ag pharmaceutical firm logo can go atop any or all of above—or be the first layer pitched aside as the sun warms the morning. Which highlights the only real drawback to layers: they tend to get scattered hither and yon with the weather's whims.

I don't have a thing to wear.

It's layered. All over the place.

Farm Show Seeks Stories, Photographs Of World War II Agricultural Life

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The 1995 state Farm Show is to feature displays and a theme of the role of Pennsylvania agriculture during World War II and a committee is seeking people who farmed during that time who may have stories or photographs they would be willing to share to help make the public presentation as truthful and interesting as possible.

According to Fred Walters, project officer, the theme was suggested by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania World War II Commemorative Committee, a state-level affiliate organization of the national committee, formally recognized by the U.S. Department of Defense.

Pennsylvania's committee is chaired by Joseph R. Clelan, Pennsylvania's deputy adjutant general for veterans affairs, and includes members such as former state representative Sam Hayes, of Blair County, a well-known supporter of agriculture.

The theme particularly befits the state Farm Show because the Farm Show Complex itself had been used for military uses from December 1943 to February 1946.

However, the stories of what it was like to be a farmer during that time, the incidents, the ancedotes of producing food, fiber and materials during a time when necessities were rationed and farm help was difficult to find would be helpful in making the presentation as meaningful as possible.

According to Walters, the committee and the general public would deeply appreciate stories or photographs that can be used to help tell the story of farming during World War II.

To help, please write to: Fred B. Walters, Press Secretary, Pa. Dept. of Military Affairs, Public Affairs Office, Fort Indiantown Gap, Annville, Pa., 17003-5002.

All photos will be returned, Walters said.

Nutty Way For Farmer To Earn Money

LOIS SZYMANSKI
Maryland Correspondent

KEYMAR, Md — In Keymar, Maryland dairy farmer Marlin Hege, his wife, Martha) and family are adding to the family income in what some might say is a very nutty way. Since October first of this year the forty-eight year-old father of nine has shelled more walnuts then he'll probably ever eat in his lifetime, showing just how resourceful a dairy farmer can be when it comes to supplementing the income.

Hammonds Products of Stockton, Missouri, provides Hege and his family with the machine that removes the outer hull from the walnut, and sacks to store them in. The company also pays to run ads in local publications to solicit walnuts. Hege pays ten cents a pound for the walnuts once they have been hulled, and the company, in turn pays him 12 and a half cents a pound. A truck from Hammonds picks up the sacks of hulled walnuts at the end of the season. Hege said that about half the weight of the walnut is hull.

"Someone from the company had gone through here and noticed that there were a lot of walnut trees in this area and they contacted the man in Shippensburg who had been doing it for them for a few years," said Hege. "He checked with someone from down here, and they mentioned my name. So then, they called me and asked me if I'd like to do it."

Hege and his family have hulled four-to-five-tons of walnuts so far, this season, which isn't over until the end of November. Hege said that he expects to get more nuts in coming years, as his name becomes associated with walnuts. "A lot of the people that have come have said they will be back next year, and I guess they will tell other people," he said, "so the word will get around that way."

"We've never really timed how fast the machine is," Hege said of the hulling machine, "but a man on Saturday brought us nine hundred and some pounds, (after the hull was removed), and it took about 15 minutes to hull them. As fast as we put them in they go on through!"

When someone comes with a load of walnuts Hege dumps or shovels the nuts into the machine's hopper. They are carried up the conveyer and into the machine in amounts that the machine can handle. Twirling chains inside a spiral shaped cage knock the hull off and the inside nuts are dropped into the sacks. Then, Hege weighs the sacks on a separate scale. The chopped hulls exit the machine on the opposite side from the inside nut, forming a huge pile of minced walnut hulls.

The Hege family spreads the minced walnut hulls on their fields with a manure spreader. "We were a little concerned about that when we were contacted by them," Hege confides, "because they are pretty acid, I think. But the company said that it would be no problem if the sun shines on the hulls and they dry out. They said the sun and weather neutralizes the acid.

Hege spoke to a forest ranger who told him that walnut hulls are toxic to tomatoes, soy beans, and other plants, but are good for grass.

"It has worked out very good," Hege said. "As long as we can do it with our other work. We just have a small dairy here. We figured that rather than invest money to get bigger in dairy, we could do a few things like this to help out with income. It isn't something that will get you rich quick, but, if we could do about fifty ton, that would be about $2,500. I'm sure we won't do that this year. But there was no investment as far as start-up cost, so there is no risk there for us, just the time we put into it."

The Hege's operate a 96-acre dairy farm, milking about 32 head of their 50 Holsteins. He says that, while it is not a profitable thing yet, "it makes good use of the resources that we have."

"A lot of older, retired people have come with walnuts and said that their grandchildren picked up the nuts for Christmas money," Hege says with a smile. "And quite a few have said they will be back next year!"

Marlin Hege stands before the pile of walnut hulls the machine has dumped out. The hulls will be spread on his fields with a manure spreader. The sacks contain hulled walnuts for Hammonds Products to pick up.

What You Should Know About Black Walnut Trees

RUTGERS, N.J. — Not only are black walnuts tough to crack, the trees can prove tough on plant growing within their root area. This is because of a phenomenon called allelopathy - the toxic effect of one plant on another.

Black walnut (and butternut) toxicity is a fairly well-known problem. An important reference on vegetable diseases lists and describes walnut wilt on tomatoes. Many other plants are well known to be sensitive to juglone, the toxin present in black walnut: potato, pea, cabbage, rhododendron, white pine, white birch cotoneaster, blackberry, pear, apple. The symptoms of walnut toxicity range from stunting to partial or total wilting to death. Susceptible plants may begin growing well and then, suddenly, wilt and die. The symptoms on herbaceous plants may resemble those of diseases caused by bacteria and fungi.

The black walnut toxin is present in most parts of the plant. Problems arise when roots of susceptible plants contact or are close to black walnut roots, bark, leaves, hulls. The usual cause of a problem is the presence of walnut roots in soil where susceptible plants are being grown. Remembering that a tree's roots extend well beyond the tree's branch spread, susceptible plants may be affected although they are some distance from the black walnut. And, of course, as a tree grows, the roots extend, and a garden that had no problems in past years may begin showing signs of walnut toxicity. If bark, leaves or roots are incorporated into soil where susceptible plants are grown, problems may occur.

Less well documented than plants susceptible to walnut toxicity are the plants that do grow within the root area of black walnuts. A list of plants, developed by Frank Robinson, director of the Lewis Ginter Botanic Garden and published in the Virginia Gardener from Virginia Cooperative Extension. The list includes herbaceous perennials, bulbs, trees, vines and shrubs, and annuals.

Among the herbaceous perennials listed are: astilbe, bellflower, sweet woodruff, cranesbill, daylily, coralbells, hosta, Siberian iris, bee balm, sensitive fern, cinnamon fern, summer phlox, polyanthus primrose, bloodroot, sedum, lamb's ear, trillium. Bulbs include: crocus, winter aconite, snowdrop, grape hyacinth, narcissus cultivars tulip cultivars. Trees, shrubs and vines include: Japanese maple, Canadian hemlock, weeping forsythia, tartarian honeysuckle, pinxterbloom azalea and Exbury azalea cultivars. Flowering annuals include: begonia species, morning glory and pansy.

Homestead Notes

Marlin Hege runs the machine provided to him by Hammonds Products to hull walnuts. The sacks contain hulled walnuts which the company will pick up.

Farm Bureau Kicks Off Adopt-A-Classroom Program

Albany, N.Y. — Kids, today, do not know much about life on the farm. New York Farm Bureau Women hope to change that with their new Adopt A Classroom Program.

According to Onalie Beckstead, State Chairman of New York Farm Bureau's Women's Program and a dairy farmer from St. Lawrence County, "The goal of the Adopt A Classroom Program is to increase agricultural awareness of youth in New York by an exchange of letters between a farm family and an elementary school classroom." She added, "With less than one-half of one percent of the state's population living on the farm, today, it is imperative that we help our students learn about life on the farm and to discover where their food comes from."

Beckstead says it's easy for farmers and teachers to get involved in Farm Bureau's Adopt A Classroom Program. "Farmers and teachers who are interested in participating in this special program only need to fill out an application. Our State Women's Committee will then match a classroom to a farm family. Both parties will then be sent information about each other."

Six Top Turkey Questions

Blame it on the dog! Last week as I was "digging" in the freezer in the basement, I found a turkey. I couldn't believe it. Right there before my eyes was a 20 pound bird. What's so significant about this turkey is that I bought it last Christmas but at the last minute decided I was hungry for roast beef for Christmas dinner. I never would have forgotten the turkey if it hadn't been for a large bag of bones we just had to have for the dog. The bones were in a bag that sat on top and completely covered the turkey!

So the big questions are first is the turkey still good and if it is, do I tell Russell we are going to eat year old turkey for Thanksgiving? Surely there has to be others of you reading who've had a turkey in your freezer for a long time. When I was preparing to write this article I was relieved to find out my turkey is fine and I'm not the only person with the same question. Here are the six most commonly asked turkey questions on USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline.

1. How long will turkey last in the freezer? Is it safe to use a turkey I've had frozen since last Thanksgiving?

Yes! a whole frozen turkey can be stored in your home freezer at 0°F for up to one year without appreciable loss of quality. To prevent freezer burn, wrap the turkey in heavy freezer paper.

2. Which tastes betters fresh or frozen turkeys? If I choose a fresh turkey, how long will it keep in my refrigerator?

There is no significant difference in quality between a fresh turkey and a frozen one. But you can only keep a fresh turkey refrigerated 1-2 days before cooking.

3. How long should I thaw turkey? How can I quickly thaw a turkey when time has run out?

Thawing your turkey in the refrigerator is the preferred method. Allow one day for each five pounds. In a hurry? Thaw the turkey in a clean sink. Put it in a heavy freezer bag secured with a twist tie. Cover the bird with cold water, changing the water every 30 minutes to keep it cool. Allow 6 - 9 hours for a 12 to 16 pound turkey, 9 - 11 hours for a 16 to 20 pound bird. Turkey can be thawed in the microwave oven, if it will fit. Be ready to cook the bird as soon as it's thawed.

4. What's the safest way to stuff a turkey? Is it okay to stuff a large turkey?

You can stuff a turkey, but do it just before you put it in the oven. To save time, chop up and refrigerate stuffing ingredients the night before. Combine everything the next morning just before roasting. Stuff the bird loosely.

5. What is the best way to cook a picture-perfect turkey?

There are several cooking methods which will provide a delicious, tender turkey. You can roast the bird uncovered in a 325°F oven. This will give you dryer meat but a great roasted flavor. Or you can put the turkey in an oven cooking bag for a more moist bird in a shorter time. Other cooking methods include the microwave, rotisserie or outdoor kettle grill.

6. Can I cook the turkey the day before Thanksgiving? How do I safely store it and then warm it up for dinner?

Cooking ahead requires special attention to safe food handling. First, cook the bird to an internal temperature of 180°F in an oven set not lower than 325°F. Bake stuffing separately.

When roasted, let the bird stand for 15 minutes. Carve the meat off, leaving legs, thighs and wings intact if you like. Refrigerate the turkey in small shallow containers. On Thanksgiving Day, reheat the meat in a 325°F oven or warm in the microwave. To keep the meat tender when using a conventional oven, cover it with gravy or the natural cooked juices. Serve the heated slices on a platter, with the whole pieces garnishing the edges.

If you have questions about food safety or your holiday turkey call the USDA Meat and Poultry Hotline at 1-800-535-4555.

ANSWER — Sherry Rechlin, Lebanon, Conn., wanted a recipe called Death by Chocolate. Thanks to Dave Dennis, Fredericksburg, and Fern Huber, East Earl, for sending similar recipes. Dave writes that the dish is an interesting occasional treat in small amounts, but not really satisfying to a true chocolate lover. An artical in "Newsweek" pointed out the expense involve in making this dessert and added, "There isn't a glimmer of real chocolate flavor in the whole bowl; this stuff should be called Death by Sugar and Partially Hydrogenated Vegetable Oil.

Death By Chocolate
From "The Mr. Food Cookbook" (serves up to 24
or 1 serious chocoholic)

1 box (19.8 ounces) fudge brownie mix
¼ to ½ cup coffee liqueur
3 packages (4-serving size each) instant chocolate mousse
8 chocolate-covered toffee candy bars (1.4 ounces each) such as SKOR or Heath bars)
12-ounces frozen whipped cream topping, thawed

Bake the brownies according to the package directions; let cool. Prick holes in the tops of the brownies with a fork and pour the coffee liqueur over the brownies; set aside. Prepare the chocolate mousse according to the package directions. Break the candy bars into small pieces in a food processor or by gently tapping the wrapped pieces with a hammer. Break up half of the brownies into small pieces and place in the bottom of a large glass bowl or trifle dish. Cover with half of the mousse, then half of the candy, and half the whipped topping. Repeat layers with the remaining ingredients.

Note: Instead of coffee liqueur, substitute 1 teaspoon sugar and 4 tablespoons leftover black coffee, or leave out the coffee flavoring entirely.

Dave writes that when he served this, he garnished the top with a sprinkling of semi-sweet chocolate chips.

Death By Chocolate

2 boxes Jell-O chocolate mousse
1 large contained whipped cream topping
1 Devil's Food cake mix
4-6 Heath or SKOR candy bars

Bake cake according to package directions. Make chocolate mousse according to the box directions.

Layer broken cake in a glass bowl, add pudding and whipped topping. Repeat layers ending with crumbs of candy on top.

Sherry Rechlin writes that this tastes really good but not too rich.

Kid's Korner

An old-fashioned carousel greets visitors as they enter Under the Big Top at Longwood Gardens Chrysanthemum Festival. Eight animals made from plants are set on the colorful frame built by Longwood craftsmen.

The Chrysanthemum Festival at Longwood Gardens runs from now through Nov. 20, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Under The Big Top At Longwood Gardens

KENNET SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Step right up, kids, and seen the amazing circus at Longwood Gardens.

Find four acres filled with flowers and festivities under the Big Top.

Meet Jerry Brown and his monkey Django.

Not all the animals are real. There are animals made from plants — gigantic elephants — tigers leaping through fire-colored mums — seals balancing balls — monkeys doing hijinks, and an elegant topiary carousel.

View yourself in the crazy mirrors that distort your shape. Be amazed at the one-man circus as he rides a unicycle, walks on stilts, and juggles.

Admire the collection of antique circus wagons, calliopes, and circus trucks.

If you go on the weekend, you can see clowns, jugglers, and mimes marching through the fun-filled conservatories.

Magician Chris Capehart and his trusty sidekick rabbit demonstrate some magic.

Tuckers Tales Puppet Theatre perform a play.

Kids can even dress up in circus attire in the "Please Touch Museum."

This isn't for children only. There are weekday food demonstrations that will attract cooks in the family. Chefs will cover such delicacies as Italian Festival Foods, Clowning Around with Vinegars, Juggling Cranberries, Whimsical Ways with Popcorn, and Peanuts A'plenty.

Jon Bish's FFA work projects are small grains and the market hogs he has raised and sold for the past two years. His career goal is to become a full-time farmer, possibly with a custom-work operation along with field crops.

York FFA Leader Wins Trip To Kansas City

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

EAST BERLIN (York Co.) — An eighth-grade introduction to the vocational agriculture program set a new direction for Jon Bish's high school years and possibly for the rest of his life.

Bish, 18, a senior vo-ag student at Dover High School, was recently named the winner of the York Fair's FFA special award. The honor includes an expenses-paid trip to the National FFA Convention and the American Royal Livestock Show, both being held in Kansas City, Missouri, during the week of November 7.

"I like working with my hands," explains Bish in relating why the Dover High School FFA chapter's recruiting program to eighth-grade students immediately captured his interest. "They went over the different courses involved, and the mechanics interested me. It sounded like the kind of thing I wanted to do."

For his first vo-ag project, Bish planted wheat on some of the John Bish family's owned and rented ground around their 10-acre East Berlin R2 farm. The initial small grain venture was "an experiment" for him and his father and they were disappointed with yields on that first crop. After a few more years of experience, Bish was pleased with the results of the most recent crop of wheat.

Dover FFA advisors Larry Redding and Nick Stollar encouraged Bish to expand to swine last year.

"They wanted me to get involved with swine production, which would show a faster turnover of investment," Bish says. Two of his three market hogs were entered in the 1993 York Fair, despite his never having raised or shown an animal before.

"I didn't know much about showing, like watching the judge more than my pig," he relates, a situation which cost him lower placings in the classes.

With that experience behind him, and advice he sought from fellow FFA hog producers, Bish took two of this year's project crossbreds to the Fair's market classes. Not only did his animal do better, Bish placed second in fitting and showing competitions.

FFA York Fair winner Jon Bish tackles some of the paperwork required to apply for achievement awards through the vocational-agriculture program. His fair award earned him an expenses-paid trip to the upcoming National FFA Convention in Kansas City.

Raising hogs has led to some interesting moments for Bish, who runs his hogs outside for the exercise to better develop a lean, firmly muscled pig.

"They have minds of their own and short attention spans," he admits with a grin. Once he came home from school earlier this year to find all four market hogs out of their pen. After "trashing" the barn, they had busied themselves at rooting up the lawn.

How to raise, show, and round up escaped hogs is just a small part of the knowledge Jon Bish has acquired through vo-ag and FFA participation.

"I've learned there is a wide choice of careers in agriculture, not just farming, things like animal science and hydroponics," he explains. Still, his career focus is to farm, if not full-time then at least part time, possibly expanding to some custom farm work.

"Farming is a different kind of career: it's interesting to me. I don't like to follow the crowd. And as the population grows, more food will be demanded. New technology will help farmers produce food even better than they do now."

Alone with his vo-ag enterprises, Bish is currently on the school's work-study program. He is employed by Kampel Enterprises, Wellsville, working with maintenance and groundskeeping on the airstrip the firm operates, and the various product lines they manufacture.

Through FFA activities, Jon Bish has also expanded his own personal abilities.

"I don't like getting up in front of a group of people, but I have learned to do that," he says, crediting his FFA involvement with overcoming a familiar fear. Bish has held numerous leadership roles in the Dover FFA chapter before accepting the president's gavel, including vice president, chapter sentinel, and chairman of numerous committees.

Bish has participated in livestock judging and agronomy contests at the state level, as well as county competition in meats identification, tractor driving, and livestock judging. For his involvement, he was named Star Chapter Greenhand and is a recipient of the York County FFA White Rose degree. Along with his agriculture interest, Jon is a four-year member of the Dover High School soccer team.

Bish recently learned that he will be receiving the state FFA's Keystone Farmer degree, which will be presented at the state FFA convention, held in Harrisburg

Celebrate A Colonial Christmas

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — The Christ United Methodist Church has just the thing for people who want to step back in time this holiday season.

It is the second annual Colonial Christmas that the church members will present from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Nov. 12 at the church at 47 E. King St.

Rose Dillner, who is the co-chairwoman for the program, promises that those who attend it won't have any regrets.

Instead, she said, they will leave with a little extra dose of the holiday spirit.

They won't leave hungry, either, because a highlight of the program will be a Williamsburg Luncheon that will feature foods that were popular in colonial Williamsburg in Virginia.

Dillner said the members of her church have been working all year to prepare for the program. For instance, they have made dozens of specialty items and crafts for the country store and Ye Olde Herb Shop that will be featured during the event.

The staging of the colonial Christmas Program in Shippensburg is appropriate since this farming community was an outpost for the Pennsylvania colony in the 1700s. Many times, the local farmers had to retreat into town due to the danger of attacks by Indians.

Those who attend the Church's program won't have to worry about that, however. They will instead be able to concentrate on admiring beautiful Christmas and fall arrangements and Williamsburg-type decorations.

Those who are in search of gifts for loved ones this holiday will be able to pick from items such as wall hangings, fabric baskets, herbal vinegars, and hand-sewn items. Handmade Christmas decorations also will be available.

In addition to the crafts made by the church members, Dillner said an antiques consignment room will be chocked full of items from the stock of many local antique dealers. Church members will contribute jewelry, furniture, and other collectible items also.

Those with an appetite for home-baked food will find a lot to choose from at Ye Olde Bake Shop that will be set up especially for the one-day event, Dillner said.

And if you are really hungry for a hot meal, the event will have something for you, too. Dillner said that most popular feature of the festival, which will feature church members in colonial costumes, is the Williamsburg Dinner.

Entrees for the dinner are baked Virginia ham with Peach sauce or turkey tetrazzini. Both dinners will include Christmas broth, Kings Arms Tavern salad, buttermilk biscuits, and blueberry muffins with honey or herb butter, Virginia buttered corn, Kings Arms Tavern sweet potato casserole, and desserts of black walnut ice cream or spicy carrot cake.

The dinner will be served from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the day of the program and it costs $7.95 for adults and $3.50 for children. Those who want to reserve a seat for the dinner should send a self-addressed stamped envelope and a check for the price of the meals they want to the church at 47 E. King St., Shippensburg 17257. They must specify which entree they want.

Dillner said she is hoping for a good crowd for the holiday event.

If you want to come, but get lost in town trying to find the church, there will be an easy way to set your bearings. Just like in colonial days, all you will have to do is follow the sound of the voice of the town crier, Bob Shirk, and it will lead you right to the church.

York FFA Leader

during Farm Show week. Selection for the York Fair award is based on the Keystone Farmer application and a personal interview before a three-person judging panel.

Nick Stollar, co-advisor of the Dover FFA chapter, says that watching students like Jon grow and develop is one of the greatest rewards of the job.

"Jon is an excellent student with good academic records and maintains good work ethics. From the first times I visited his freshman projects as an advisor, I've watched him grow and develop into a confident young man. He has good leadership qualities and is able to pull a lot of different students into the various FFA programs," Stellar adds.

With more than a dozen of the Dover chapter members interested in attending the Kansas City national convention, co-advisor Larry Redding has organized the first county bus trip to attend the annual gathering of an estimated 28,000 FFA members and guests. Some 47 FFA members, from four York County chapters and a few from Adams County chapters, will make the convention trip. During the event, Redding will be honored as a recipient of an honorary FFA American Farmer degree, reportedly the only Pennsylvanian to receive the award this year.

If it were human, they'd test it for steroids.

Massey Ferguson's newest platform tractor — the MF® 3120T — delivers 110 horsepower from a turbocharged Perkins 1000 Series engine. But you'd swear it was even bigger. That's because the engine's unique Quadram combustion chamber and Dynatorque Power Curve deliver more torque and higher torque backup on less fuel than conventional 110 hp engines.

And when you add in the superior performance of Massey Ferguson's exclusive Economy PTO, Dynashift transmission, and optional true 4WD, you've got one powerful performer. So much useable power that the competition can't believe it's real.

All You Need To Know About Cooking With Squash

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — This is the season to make good use of the abundant supply of squash.

Recently Althea Engle, Lancaster extension agent, held two workshops on cooking with squash. She prepared many recipes, which participants taste-tested at the workshops held at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster. She also demonstrated easy methods of preparing squash.

Squash contains abundant supplies of Vitamin A and potassium. In fact, one-half cup of canned pumpkin provides five times the U.S. RDA for vitamin A and 10 percent of the minimum requirement for potassium.

The riches source for Beta-carotene (which the body converts into vitamin A) is found in squash — the darker orange, the more beta-carotene.

Beta-carotene is cited by the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Socity as a possible dietary inhibitor of certain cancers — including those of the lungs, skin, and the digestive system. other studies show that people with diets high in beta-carotene have a lower risk of developing certain cancers than those who consume less beta-carotene.

Beta-carotene is important to the body in other ways as well. Medical experts say this nutrient also plays a role in good vision, healthy skin, a strong immune system, and bone and tooth development.

There are many different varieties of squash — every one of them nutritious. Experiment with the different varieties. Some are so tender and sweet that people enjoy them without any seasoning or only a minimal amount of seasoning. One of the favorites for this is Carnival squash.

Although many varieties are interchangeable, some varieties make better pies than others. Generally neck pumpkins, butternut or acorn squash is used in pies, cakes, cookies, and bread baking.

When buying neck pumpkins, buy the longest neck possible as there is more food value in the neck and the body contains mostly seeds.

Raw squash and pumpkin can easily be prepared by cutting it in half, turning upside down on a baking dish and baking in the oven at 350 degrees for about 30 minutes or until soft. Or, pierce the skins in several spots, place in the microwave, and microwave on high speed until soft. Do not add water when baking as squash retains moisture.

Remove from the oven or microwave, split open, remove seeds and pith, scoop out pumpkin. Mash and use as desired.

The traditional way to prepare cooked pumpkin from a whole ripe one, is to wash the outside and dry it. Then split in half with a knife. Remove the seeds (the seeds may be roasted and eaten after shelling). Cut halves into strips and cut pulp away from tough outer husk. Cut the pulp into cubes, place in a saucepan, and add a scant half a cup of water. Do not add excess water as pumpkin is quite watery in itself. Cook over low heat until cubes are soft. Mash and use as desired.

Steam a winter squash like acorn or butternut in the microwave. Add canned pineapple or applesauce to sweeten the squash.

Here are some recipes from the workshop.

MICROWAVE PUMPKIN SQUARES

1 cup all-purpose flour
¾ cup brown sugar
1 cup canned pumpkin
2 egg whites or 1 whole egg
½ teapsoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pumpkin pie spice
⅓ cup chopped nuts
¼ cup raisins

Place all ingredients in a mixing bowl. Blend at slow speed; then beat at medium speed for one minute. Spread batter in 8x8x-inch glass baking dish.

Place on an inverted saucer. Microwave at 50 percent power for 6 minutes, rotating ¼ turn every 1 to 2 minutes. Increase power to high. Microwave 5 to 6 minutes, rotating ¼ turn every 2 minutes. Do this until very little unbaked batter appears through the bottom of the dish. Let stand 5 to 10 minutes. Cool. Frost with light cream cheese frosting.

Light Cream Cheese Frosting:
3-ounces light cream cheese
2 tablespoons soft butter
1½ to 2 cups confectioners' sugar

Combine cream cheese and butter in mixing bowl. Microwave on high for 10 to 20 seconds or until softened. Blend well. Beat in sugar until it is of spreading consistency. Spread on cooled squares.

BUTTERNUT SQUASH AUX FINES HERBS

1 large butternut squash
1 teaspoon olive oil
1 large onion, thinly sliced
3 large mushrooms, thinly sliced
¼ cup nonfat or low-fat chicken stock
1½ teaspoons minced fresh chervil or ½ teaspoon dried chervil
½ teaspoon fresh tarragon or ¼ teaspoon dried tarragon
1 tablespoon fresh minced parsley
1½ teaspoons fresh snipped chives

Peel the squash, remove the seeds and cut into ¾ -inch cubes. To make peeling easier, prick the squash with a fork and microwave on high for 5 to 10 minutes. Heat the oil in a large nonstick frying pan over medium-low heat, and add the onions and mushrooms. Saute for about 5 minutes or until the onion softens. Add the squash and nonfat chicken stock. cover tightly and cook until the squash is tender, approximately 20 minutes. (If you are using dried chervil and tarragon, add after 15 minutes of cooking. Remove the cover, and cook a minute or two longer to evaporate most of the remaining liquid. Sprinkle on the parsley and chives, and also the fresh chervil and tarragon, if used. Makes 4 (1 cup) servings.

SQUASH STUFFED WITH RICE

1½ cups cooked rice
½ cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup cracker meal
1 medium onion, finely chopped
2 egg whites, slightly beaten
½ teaspoon ground sage
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoon brown sugar
Freshly ground pepper
3 buttercup or acorn squash, halved and seeded

Combine rice, walnuts, cracker meal, onion, egg whites, sage, nutmeg, parsley, brown sugar, and black pepper.

Spoon mixture loosely into squash halves. Bake in foil-covered pan until squash is tender. Oven: 350 degrees for 60 minutes. Makes 8 servings.

SPICY APPLE-STUFFED SQUASH

2 squashes, acorn or butternut
1 McIntosh apple
⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
1 teaspoon butter
3 tablespoons brown or white sugar

Wash squashes. Cut in half crosswise; remove pith and seeds. Place in a baking pan with cut side down; bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Mix spices and sugar together. Core and slice apple; mix apple with spice-sugar mixture. Turn squash halves cut side up in pan. Brush with butter. Arrange apple slices in squash halves. Cover pan. Bake 25 to 30 minutes until apples are tender. Serve.

ORANGE SPAGHETTI SQUASH

1 spaghetti squash (about 3¼ pounds)
1 tablespoon unsalted butter, softened
½ cup fresh orange juice
½ cup minced fresh parsley leaves
1 tablespoon julienne fresh orange peel

In a kettle of boiling water, boil the squash, turning it occasionally, for one hour, drain it and let it cool for 10 minutes. Cut the squash in half and discard the seeds. Scrape out the flesh with the tines of a fork, transferring it to a serving dish, season it with salt and pepper, and dot it with butter. Drizzle the orange juice over the squash, sprinkle the squash with the parsley, and garnish it with the rind. Makes 4 servings.

Beef Equal To Chicken In Reducing Cholesterol

HOUSTON, Texas— When a cholesterol-lowering diet is prescribed, new research indicates lean beef can stay on the menu.

Researchers at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston have determined eating lean beef in a cholesterol-lowering diet produces reductions in levels of total blood cholesterol and LDL (low-density lipoprotein—the "bad" cholesterol) similar to those achieved by eating chicken.

"The keys to keeping beef in a heart-healthy, low-fat diet are the amount of fat in the meat and the portion size," said Lynne Scott, director of the DeBakey Heart Center's Diet Modification Clinic at Baylor and The Methodist Hospital and the study's principal investigator.

The beef and chicken used in the study were prepared by scientists at Texas A&M University and contained only 7 or 8 percent fat. Portion sizes totaled less than three ounces of meat per 1,000 calories daily.

The 13-week study involved 38 healthy men with cholesterol levels higher than 240 mg/dl. After a three-week period to stabilize their diets, the men were provided with their food for 10 weeks.

For five weeks, all participants followed a typical American diet with 40 percent of calories from fat that contained both lean beef and chicken entrees. Then, for five weeks, half the men ate chicken and half ate lean beef as their only entree as part of the American Heart Association's Step-One Diet for lowering cholesterol.

Cholesterol levels were reduced by similar percentages in both groups.

"The study results mean lean beef and chicken are interchangeable in the Step-One Diet," scott said. "Now we can offer more variety in cholesterol-lowering diets and, hopefully, help patients avoid becoming bored and abandoning their healthier eating plans."

Results from the study, which was funded by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, were published in the June 13 edition of the Archives of Internal Medicine.

The DeBakey Heart Center is a joint program of Baylor College of Medicine and The Methodist Hospital supporting cardiovascular research, treatment and education.

Dryer Vent Safety

CHICAGO, Il. — Your shiny new dryer probably offers a wider selection of special fabric cycles, a larger door opening for fast loading and unloading and an easy-to-reach lint screen—all conveniences missing on that 20-year-old model that just died. Best of all, this larger capacity model fits right into the space vacated by the old dryer.

But before connecting your new dryer to the old exhaust vent, home economists from Whirlpool Corporation urge you to make a safety check of its existing ductwork. "That exhaust vent system is probably as ancient as the original dryer and may be clogged with lint or made of a material that's combustible," they explain.

Whirlpool home economists note that many older dryers were vented with flexible vinyl ducting, a type of ducting no longer recommended by testing organizations such as Underwriters Laboratories (UL) or by dryer manufacturers .

Tests indicate that flexible vinyl ducting tends to collect and hold lint in its creases, creating a potential fire hazard. Vinyl also melts at high temperatures, preventing it from containing a fire as well as metal ductwork can.

So, when installing a new dryer, Whirlpool home economists encourage homeowners to make the following safety checks to ensure that the dryer is connected to proper metal ductwork that has unblocked air flow:

• If ductwork is made of vinyl or other combustible material, replace it with 4-inch diameter rigid or flexible metal ducting.

• For a vent system with metal ductwork, check to make sure it meets the manufacturer's recommendations for correct installation. Is it the correct length and generally straight with as few elbows as possible?

• Vacuum ductwork sections to make sure they're clean and free of lint.

Check the outside end of the ducting to see that it's uncovered. A covering (such as a grill screen, bag, stocking, etc.), can trap lint inside the ductwork, blocking dryer air flow. This can result in longer drying times, higher energy use and conditions that can cause a fire.

• Check the outside vent outlet to be sure it exhausts into an open area. Is it visible, easy to reach for cleaning and at least one foot above the ground to allow good air circulation? Never end dryer venting under a house or porch or in an air shaft, crawl space, attic, chimney or other hidden area.

• Follow your dryer manufacturer's instructions for cleaning the venting system. Depending on use, the ductwork should be cleaned every one to two years.

Who Says Pumpkins Don't Grow On Trees?

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

HOLTWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — Who said pumpkins don't grow on trees?

John and Martha Herr have living proof. A pumpkin hangs from the pine tree in their backyard.

If you look a bit closer, you can see the pumpkin vine hidden beneath the tree branches. Herr had planted pumpkins in his garden, and while gone on a month-long trip, the pumpkin vine meandered from the garden, wrapped itself around the tree, and sprouted a pumpkin.

The pumpkin growing on a tree seems symbolic of the Herr family who appear to thrive on impossibilities.

John is a chemist who sang at Carnegie Hall, ran for mayor, farmed, and studied at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore for seven years on a part-time basis while raising five children. The couple had a son who lost his legs in a mountain climbing accident but later conquered rock climbing on artificial legs.

Martha likes to help others conquer the impossible. She teaches illiterate adults to read. She is concerned that there are 35,000 adults in the county who cannot read. She is now the literacy tutor coordinator for the Lancaster-Lebanon Literacy Center.

The Herr couple, who married in college, decided when they married that they wanted lots of children fast and to own a nice farm.

"I am a tenth generation Hans Herr descendant, so owning good farmland was something I always aspired to do. It happened," said John, who goes by the full name John Bucher Herr, to differentiate himself from the numerous other John Herrs in the county.

Herr's most consuming passion is singing. He grew up with no particular interest in music. His family moved often. The longest time Herr spent at one school, he said, was seven months. That was at the Edward Hand Junior High School in Lancaster, where the U.S. Marine Chorus presented a choral program.

"I was wowed by that," Herr said. But his love for sports was stronger, and Herr pursued sports. When he attended Eastern Mennonite College, his interest in sports continued, but he found time to take a voice class — not a whole lot of training for a person who would later achieve his dream of singing at Carnegie Hall.

But first, he worked a few years as a chemist, built a house, sold it, and purchased a 130-acre farm, which they named "Leban Kai" — a combination of German and Hawaiian words that mean "living by the water". The farm is situated at the head waters of Muddy Run Creek.

At first, the Herrs fattened calves for steers to raise the money needed to pay the farm mortgage. Later, they raised tomatoes, corn, and hay.

"Those days were the heyday for tomato raising. If you had early tomatoes, you received a phenomenal price," he said.

The Herrs raised eight acres of tomatoes, but it was never enough, Herr said. "It's still to be determined what can be grown on 100 feet (of land)," Herr said.

In the wintertime, Herr would built a house or two, which he later sold or used as a rental property.

Eventually, the tomato business dwindled and Herr concentrated on buying rental properties to fix up in the city.

Every summer the family took a long trip. Mountain climbing and skiing became family hobbies. Their son Hugh became obsessed with climbing and established many records in soloing. But when Hugh was 17 years old, he lost his legs during an ice climbing expediuon. The story about the accident, how he lost his legs, how he learned to climb on artifical legs, and later design prothesis and sneakers for amputees is told in the book "Second Ascent" by Alison Osius.

The Herrs travel to other countries about three times a year. They continue to live on the farm but rent the barns and land to neighboring farmers. But Herr hasn't lost his yen for farming. His dream is to raise the biggest pumpkin ever. In his travels, he has viewed some giant species, one in Conneticut that reached 910 pounds.

This year he did raise some large pumpkins in his garden, but the one on the tree, although small, is the one that is considered his prize. At first it reached almost to the top of the tree, but as it grows, the weight of the pumpkin brings it lower.

John and Martha Herr show off the pumpkin that grows from a tree on their farm. The pumpkin started growing near the top of the tree, but the weight of it brings it lower and lower.

Plastic Coatings On Teeth Give Lasting Smiles

CHICAGO, Ill. — Children who have dental sealants applied to their teeth today will be smiling for years to come.

The clear plastic coatings can prevent 90 percent of tooth decay, but just one child in 10 has had the sealants applied.

"Dental sealants are highly effective in preventing decay on the biting surfaces of molars, where the majority of decay occurs in children," said Erik Olsen, D.D.S., chairman of he American Fund for Dental Health.

Dentists recommend that sealants be applied to the first permanent molars soon after they erupt, between ages 6-8, and to the second molars when they appear, around ages 12-14. Sealing both sets of teeth as soon as they appear prevents decay from taking hold and destroying the teeth.

The coatings, which seal out decay and seal in healthy teeth, are quick, easy and painless to apply. First, the teeth are thoroughly cleaned and dried. Next, the tooth surface is treated with a solution that enables the sealant to bond to it. A liquid coating is then painted onto the top of the tooth. Finally, the liquid hardens, providing solid protection against decay.

"Dental sealants are not new, they're not experimental, and they're not used enough," Dr. Siegal said.

Parents interested in helping their children have healthy smiles that last should contact their dentist, their local health department or write the American Fund for Dental Health at 211 East Chicago Avenue, Chicago, IL 60611.

Extension Home Economists Gri

WICHITA, Kansas — The following members of the Pennsylvania Association of Extension Home Economists received recognition at the annual session of the National Association of Extension Home Economists on October 13, in Wichita, Kansas.

Michelle Rodgers received the $2,000 NAEHE Fellowship, established to give members an opportunity to pursue professional improvement through graduate study in an area of their choice, aimed toward a graduate degree. Michelle has combined interests in family strengths programming as well as administrative responsibilities for program and personnel as a focus in her role as interim regional director. She is pursuing her doctorate degree in ag extension education from Penn State University.

Claudette Tharp, USDA Youth at Risk project manager in Chester County, was one of 21 people to receive $1,000 from the Strengthening Our Capacity to Care, DeWitt Wallace Reader's Digest Fund's Youth at Risk Recognition Award. The award recognizes extension staff, at any level of appointment, for significant accomplishments in the area of Youth at Risk. Claudette was recognized for her Chester County Youth Education Program. Building on a background of family living and home economics, the 4-H Youth Development Program was tailored to meet the needs of Urban at-risk children and their families. A program was desired that helped children and their families become part of the community which could then be replicated in other urban settings. The program targets youth ages five to fifteen, and learning materials for younger children were identified. Samples of 4-H projects and crafts were introduced to the older children. The Youth Education Program became a catalyst to coordinate extension outreach efforts with various local organizations.

Initially there were no volunteers from the targeted community. The "4-H Lady" just kept coming, and so did the children. Adults would come, work on crafts, and talk. Ideas and concerns shared in these discussions were then incorporated into the program. Eventually, volunteers began to help at club meetings. The program is unique because it has taken 4-H into a difficult urban community, adapted traditional materials to meet a new audience, encouraged adults to volunteer and work with the youth, and helped diverse agencies to work together in a manner which could be replicated in other communities.

Patricia Powley, Dauphin County extension director, received $1,000 and the Extension Home Economist of the Year Award sponsored by Dowbrands and Maytag. This new award is the highest recognition given to an individual extension home economist. The award recognizes a professional extension home economist who is conducting outstanding educational programs that show impacts on family lives. The member is also involved in continued professional improvement activities and is active in professional organizations.

Patricia Powley has reached new audiences with a program that wasn't offered by any other agency or organization. She has multiplied her efforts, substantially, through training agency personnel and volunteers, who in turn have assisted their clients. A basic money management program has taught individuals and families very practical ways to become financially independent. Through her efforts, Penn State Cooperative Extension has been recognized as a leader in the community in financial and consumer issues. Several community counseling services refer their clients needing financial counseling to cooperative extension. Requests for help reached more than 7,000 individuals and families during the last five years.

Rebecca Escott, Lehigh County Extension home economist, received a $200 award for her news article, "Easing Back-to-School Blues" which addressed the parental challenge of preparing children to return to school in the fall. It was part of a bi-weekly column published in two area newspapers and reaching more than 65,000 subscribers.

Nancy Crago-Alcorn, Allegheny County Extension home economist and Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Extension home economist, each received the NAEHE Continued Excellence Award which is presented to home economists who have been actively involved in personal professional improvement programs, and in the promotion of personal development of others. Nancy Crago-Alcorn demonstrates commitment to professional excellence through active participation in professional development activities at national, state, and local levels. She applies information learned from formal and informal study to implement innovative, urban programs. Nancy likes to explore new challenges and is currently participating in international work in Poland.

Maryetta Dorricott aims to provide information for all segments of an urban county. She has pioneered techniques for hard-to-reach audiences: EFNEP, Toddler Topics learn-at-home packets, skills workshops presented by staff paid on a cost-recovery system, and the supercupboard concept to help people overcome the need to rely

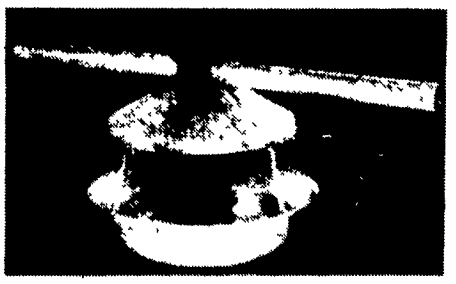
NEW & LATEST IDEAS IN TURKEY BUILDING & EQUIPMENT

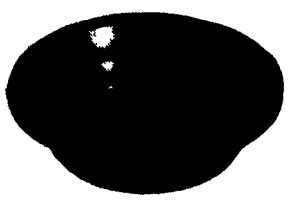
Cumberland

TURKEY PAN FEEDING SYSTEMS



SIMPLY THE LEADER

Cumberland continues being the leader in the manufacturing of poultry equipment by introducing a turkey feeding system for every application. Cumberland's Turkey Feeders have revolutionary features which make them both profitable and easy to maintain for the end customer. Cumberland Feeders deliver feed economically, efficiently, and dependably with savings for the grower. The Cumberland Turkey Pan Feeding System offers a poult turkey pan for young turkeys and two models of adult turkey pans, designed to withstand the rugged treatment of adult turkeys through grow-out.



NEW PLASTIC PAN

Easier to clean... non-corrosive... lighter... Cumberland's plastic pan for both STF and RTF Adult Pan Feeders features improved structural engineering with stronger support gussets, a more durable and effective "hanger" for cleaning and a unique set of two feed-saving "catch walls" that significantly reduce raking and billout.

GRILLESS PAN FEEDER

Growers who prefer a shallower pan for poults appreciate the classic Cumberland grilless pan feeder. Its feed saver lip prevents waste from raking and billout, while the wide center cone (with its simple and easy feed level adjustment) keeps birds out of the pan and guarantees a more efficient "first in, first out" utilization of feed. It can be mounted on the line as stationary or free-swinging, depending on your preference.

Poultry Team Competes At Eastern States

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Four members of the Grassland FFA at Garden Spot High School represented Pennsylvania in the Eastern Regional FFA Poultry Judging Contest in Springfield, Mass.

The students qualified for the Eastern National competition by placing second in the state in June. They put in many hours of hard work studying about poultry science and management in addition to refining techniques for judging hens and pullets, giving oral reasons and grading dressed birds, eggs, and other poultry products.

At the Eastern States Exposition, the Pennsylvania team, comprised of sophomores Bryan Hoover, New Holland and Danny Laudermilch, East Earl along with Brian Beck, Denver, placed third out of the 15 states in the Northeast.

Individually, Danny Laudermilch placed fifth, Brian Beck ninth, and Bryan Hoover 12th. Team alternate Ken Martin of East Earl, whose scores did not count in the team competition, would have tied for fifth place in the competition among more than 40 of the top FFA poultry judges in the region.

Said team coach Robert Lauffer "I was really pleased with the progress all four of these young men made. They worked hard and their efforts paid off. They especially improved on their judging of live birds and having the confidence to present a good set of oral reasons."

Lauffer noted that this was only the third formal competition in which these young judges had competed. (The Lancaster County Contest and the State Contest were the other two)

"A lot of states allow the same students to came back and judge the same contest year after year,"said Lauffer. "We don't allow that specialization." He said it is more valuable to allow our students to experience as many different contests and learning experiences as possible."

When asked what he enjoyed most about the trip to the "Big E" and the Eastern National Poultry Judging Contest, sophomore Bryan Hoover said, "Everything. It was a great weekend and a great experience. I can't single anything out. Mr. Lauffer told us if we worked hard, we'd be in the thick of it and he was right. He also told us we'd relax and have a lot of fun once we got there, and we did!"

RISA Seeks Proposals For On-Farm Projects

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The Regional Infrastructure for Sustaining Agriculture (RISA),a three and one half year program focused on long-term farm issues in southeastern Pennsylvania, is seeking proposals from southeast Pennsylvania dairy and vegetable farmers for on-farm research or demonstrations that address an aspect of sustainable agriculture.

Specifically, RISA is interested in proposals for sustainable technologies or practices farmers want to evaluate on their farm, as well as innovative strategies for sustaining the long-term viability of farming operations. In southeastern Pennsylvania, RISA will provide some technical and financial support to the project.

Priority will be given to proposals that address the following issues: nutrient management, marketing, intensive grazing, water quality, soil health, integrated pest control, total farm management and alternative crops. Other ideas that contribute to the long-term sustainability of farming will also be considered.

RISA is a cooperative project being conducted by Penn State University, Rodale Institute Research Center, Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA), Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Reading Terminal Farmers Market Trust, and the League of Women Voters. The project is based in southeastern Pennsylvania, including Northampton, Lehigh, Bucks, Berks, Montgomery, Philadelphia, Delaware, Lebanon, Lancaster, and Chester counties. It seeks to address the food system infrastructure in the rapidly urbanizing counties, and better ways of integrating farmers and consumers, production and markets.

RISA activities are under way to identify and broaden the understanding of barriers to and opportunities for sustaining agriculture in the region. The southeast on-farm demonstrations will provide farmers the opportunity to test and demonstrate innovative agricultural practices which work for them and a way to share the results with others.

Proposals for projects scheduled for 1995 are due by Dec. 15. For more information, contact any member of the RISA On Farm Demonstration Team listed below:

Are N.Y. Farmers At Disadvantage?

ALBANY, N.Y. — At a recent news conference sponsored by the New York State Association of Counties, New York Farm Bureau President Charles Wille said that unbearably high property taxes are squeezing the profitability out of farming and putting New York farmers at a competitive disadvantage with their counterparts in other states.

During the news conference, the Center for Government Research (CGR) unveiled a study on the high cost of state mandates and their impact on county taxpayers. The study focused on a direct county-to-county comparison between Monroe County, in western N.Y., and several similarly-sized municipalities around the country.

At the news conference, from left, Bob King, Monroe County executive; Dr. Kent Gardner, CGR's director of economic analysis and director of the study; Patricia Malgieri, president of CGR; Joseph Eade, president of NYSAC and chairman of the Cattaraugus County Legislature; Charles Wille, president of New York Farm Bureau; and Mary Hanak, executive director, Supervisors and County Legislator's Association of NYS.

Keystone Hunters To Share Venison With Hungry

ELIZABETHTOWN, (Lancaster Co.) — The "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" project will collect and distribute venison to hungry Pennsylvanians. Last year, more than 70,000 pounds of deer meat reached the plates of the state's needy families and individuals.

In the 1994 hunting season, the program sponsors, Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals (PRUA) hope to see more than 100,000 pounds of venison available for distribution.

Now in its fourth year, the statewide program coordinates efforts of hunters, game processors and food banks to channel deer meat where it is needed throughout the Keystone state. The Pennsylvania Game Commission and the Department of Agriculture assisted with promotion of the project.

Conservation groups, hunting clubs, and interested individuals are encouraged to give their extra deer meat to the needy through this service project. Individual contributions can range from a few pounds of ground meat or steaks to the entire deer. Last year, nearly 170,000 people benefited from hunters' generosity, but with seven million pounds of venison harvested across the state, PRUA aims for more donations this year. Food banks say they never have enough meat products to fill the need.

Hunters with extra venison or the desire to share their good fortune can become involved in the "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" program in three ways:

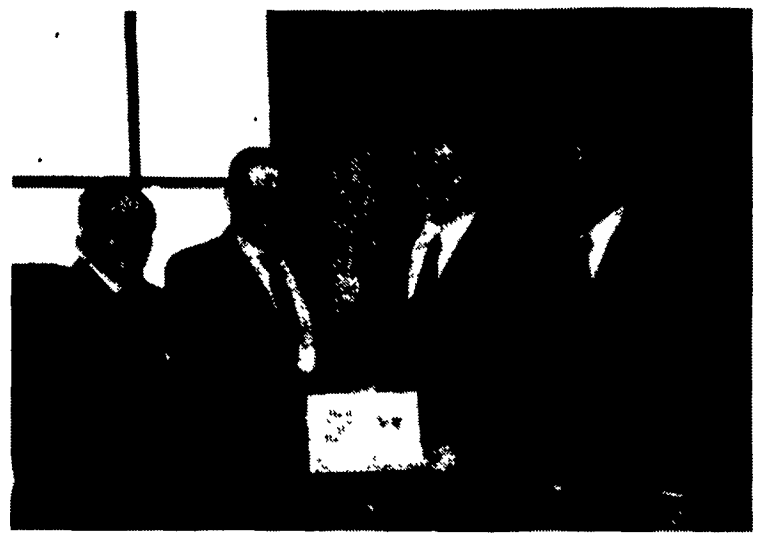
- Hunters can have the deer processed at a local game processing company that is participating in the venison collection project. The cooperating firm will accept and store meat donations and will contact the local food bank for collection.
- The second way to participate is to contact the local food bank directly (their number is listed on the blue pages of the telephone directory under "Food") and make arrangements to deliver deer meat to their organization.
- A third option is to contact PRUA at (717) 367-5223 and talk to PRUA Executive Vice President Kenneth Brandt about making a venison donation.

The innovative "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" project was initiated in 1991 by PRUA, which spearheaded the program. Its first-year success attracted the attention of United States Tobacco Company, which has supported the program since that time.

"With this support, we have been able to inform more hunters about the program and encourage them to share their venison," said PRUA Executive Vice President Kenneth Brandt of Elizabethtown. This year, 20 billboards have been strategically placed on major routes to hunting areas so hunters will he reminded about the sharing program.

PRUA is a coalition of 17 associations and individuals representing agriculture, biomedicine, entertainment, sports, and hunting groups. The umbrella organization encourages humane treatment of animals used for food, clothing, biomedical research, entertainment and sport while at the same time strongly supporting Pennsylvanians' right to the continued, responsible use of animals. The coalition also provides factual information to the public, media, elected officials and those responsible for the care of animals so they can have a better understanding of proper care standards.

Information about "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" or PRUA membership and activities is available from Executive Vice President Kenneth Brandt, P. O. Box 61, Elizabethtown, PA 17022, (717) 367-5223 .



From left, Kenneth Brandt, executive vice president of Pennsylvanians for the Responsible Use of Animals; Peter Duncan, executive director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission; Gary Theobold, representative of United States Tobacco Company, a major program sponsor; and Timothy Whelan, executive director of the South Central Pennsylvania Food Bank discuss promotional efforts for the fourth year of the "Hunters Sharing the Harvest" project.

Deere Unveils 8000 Series Tractors

MOLINE, Ill. — Drawing on input from extensive customer and competitive-owner research and more that 70 years of experience in designing and manufacturing tractor, John Deere has developed four all-new 8000 Series tractor models, ranging from 160 to 225 PTO horsepower.

The John Deere 8000 series tractors include the 160-horsepower 8100, 180-horsepower 8200, and 200-horsepower 8300, which replace th 4560, 4760, and 4960 models in the product line. The largest model, the 225-horsepower 8400, provides the most PTO horsepower and hitch lift capacity of any row-crop tractor in the industry.

The tractors feature a John Deere-designed-and-manufactured powertrain. They use proven electronic technology to provide fingertip control of the transmission, SCVs, PTO, and hitch; precise engine performance; self-diagnostic capabilities; and complete compatibility with options such as row guidance and electrohydraulic depth control. The chassis design is so innovative and unique that it is patented. It enables these tractors, equipped with 16.9R-30 MFW tires set at 60-inch spacing, to have a 17-foot turning radius—the shortest of any competitive tractor in this size class.

The John Deere 8000 Series tractors include the 160-hp 8100, 180-hp 8200, 200 hp 8300, and the 225-hp 8400. The tractors establish new standards in control, visibility, maneuverability, power, and ease of service in this size class.

One of the most distinctive features of the tractors is the CommandARM that places the controls for the transmission, throttle, SCVs, hitch, and PTo in the armrest of the seat for convenient fingertip operation. Effective use of reliable electronic technology, widely used in automotive an industrial applications for years, combined with the shape, placement, and color of the controls, provide a system that optimized operator comfort and ease of operation while minimizing hand and arm movements. The CommandARM moves with the seat when the operator makes adjustments or swivels it, so the controls are always at the operator's fingertips.

The secondary tractor controls and the vehicle monitor are located on the right-hand console, within easy view and reach of the operator. The monitor provides status information on machine systems and has the capability to display diagnostic codes directly to the operator—a first in John Deere tractors. The codes are explained in the operator's manual. Analog gauges monitor engine coolant temperature and fuel level. An oil pressure gauge is optional.

New Name For Crop Trade Association

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Agricultural Chemicals Association (NACA) has changed its name to the American Crop Protection Association (ACPA).

"ACPA's member companies are world leaders in existing and emerging agricultural technologies for today and the 21st Century. Our new name reinforces the continued central role of synthetic chemistry in agriculture and captures the potential of today's biological and bio-engineered products," said Jay J. Vroom, president, American Crop Protection Association.

"Crop protection is more than who we are, it is what we do. It connotes strength and health, and signifies our continued commitment to the miracle of American agriculture," said Vroom;

ACPA was founded in 1933 as the Agricultural Insecticide and Fungicide Association. In 1949, the mane was changed to the National Agricultural Chemicals Association. Bale Feeder Types Affect Amount Of Forage Wasted

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) —Research in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences found little variation in nutritional quality among three methods used to store forage for beef cattle, but suggests that feeder types greatly influence the amount of forage wasted.

Dr. John Comerford, associate professor of animal science, compared various storage methods for large round bales of grass. Dr. Dennis Buckmaster, assistant professor of agricultural engineering, and Dr. Erskine Cash, professor of animal science, also participated in the study.

The researchers evaluated three bale storage methods. Some grass bales were stored inside as dry hay. The rest was harvested as balage at about 40 percent dry matter, then wrapped in plastic with a bale wrapper or in a plastic tube to ferment. After 170 days, the dry hay and fermented balage were fed to mature beef cows using both a conventional ring-type bale feeder and one with an inverted cone and solid base.

Cattle in the study readily ate all of the forage. "They didn't care how it had been stored," Comerford said. "Palatability was fine for each storage method. But there were significant differences in feed losses between ring and cone feeders. The ring-type feeder wasted nearly four times as much forage as the cone-type feeder.

"That's probably because the cone feeder's solid base catches dropped forage as the cow pulls it from the bale," Comerford said. "In this study, ring feeders wasted 149 more pounds of dry hay per ton than cone feeders, and 305 more pounds of balage per ton.

"For the average cow fed hay valued at $70 per ton for five months, that's an average loss of $10.33 per bale," said Comerford. "Cone feeders cost about $550 more than ring feeders, but with a 53-cow herd, a cone feeder would pay for itself through reduced waste of forage."

The researchers analyzed each feed for dry matter and fiber content, and total digestible nutrients (TDN) both at harvest and after storage. "We measured changes in feed value after storage, and found some slight differences in TDN change. However, after adjusting for dry matter losses, there was no major difference in feed value loss among the three methods. Average TDN loss was 2.5 pounds per bale for dry hay and tubed balage, and 2.8 pounds per bale for wrapped balage."

Storing hay in plastic has the potential to recover more standing forage by reducing leaf loss and drying time in the field. But producers should compare the cost of wrapping—at about $4 per bale—with the costs of other storages, including bags, before deciding to switch methods. In most cases, there also is a cost to dispose of the plastic wrap after feeding.

Labor costs also may be higher for wrapping or tubing bales. "It takes two to three times as much labor at the time the grass is baled compared to baling dry hay," Comerford said. "Within 24 hours, balage needs to be wrapped and moved to a permanent storage site without piercing the bale and disrupting fermentation.

"Wrapping or tubing bales costs more, but these methods give producers more flexibility in harvesting and storing forage, and may recover more standing forage. Switching from dry hay to wrapped balage may be worth it, but the long-term cost must be weighed against the benefits. The situation will be different for each cattle feeder."

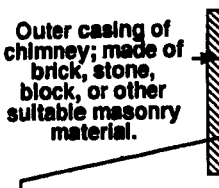
CHIMTEK™
ADVANCED CHIMNEY TECHNOLOGY

A SURE SOLUTION TO MASONRY CHIMNEY PROBLEMS:

SAFER: CHIMTEK is designed to withstand severe chimney fires without breaking or transmitting high temperatures to adjoining combustible materials.

LESS CREOSOTE: Wood smoke contains moisture (H_2O). When the smoke comes into contact with a surface under approx. 250 degrees F the water will condense to a liquid. This liquid combined with other products in wood smoke will result in creosote. Creosote can be very dangerous when it ignites. The inside of a CHIMTEK chimney stays much warmer and greatly reduces the amount of creosote formation. In many cases CHIMTEK chimneys are completely clean after years of use.

IMPROVES STOVE PERFORMANCE: The draft produced by a chimney is what pulls oxygen into the fire for combustion The three main factors affecting draft are the chimney's height, size and temperature. CHIMTEK contains a great amount of a very special insulating material that is not affected by moisture saturation and will not seattle or deteriorate. Poor draft will result in poor combusion. Poor combusion will create more smoke. Smoke is wasted fuel. Newere EPA certified stoves are especially dependent on proper draft to perform properly.



CHIMTEK INNER LINER:
- Made of volcanic pumice and high-temperature refractory cements
- Round shape provides even temperatures inside flue, and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gases.
- Highly resistant to thermal shock.
- Even if cracks should occur, the round shape and Chimtek Secondary Liner prevent pieces from falling into chimney.
- The volcanic pumice in Chimtek liners adds considerable insulating value

CHIMTEK SECONDARY LINER:
- Provides exceptional insulation to make chimney more efficient and reduce heat transfer to combustible materials.
- Provides structural support for inner liner
- Will not absorb moisture or creosote.

JAMESWAY DIRECT XPRESS™ SYSTEM

NEW BELT FEEDERS & CONVEYORS

Big Capacity Delivery.. With All The Advantages Of Dependable, Efficient, Low Profile Direct Drive Design!

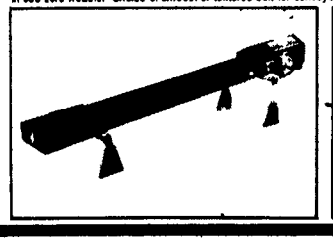
That's what farmers really appreciate about the new Jamesway family of Direct XPress Feeders and Conveyors. All models feature a dependable and efficient heavy duty industrial drive with an closed oil bath and standard 1, 2 or 3 H.P. C-faced motors. Our direct drive design eliminates pulleys, jackshafts, sprockets, chains, V belts and shields. The low profile motor and drive can be mounted on either side for added installation versatility.

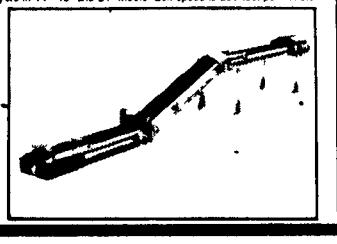
The Direct XPress family includes
- DXF 1400 Single or Divided Lot 14" Wide Belt Feeder 180 Maximum Length
- DXC 1400 14" Wide Belt Conveyor 180 Maximum Length
- DXC 1800 18" Wide Belt Conveyor 180 Maximum Length
- DXC 2400 24" Wide Belt Conveyor 124 Maximum Length

"X" Sides Are Standard
All Direct XPress System models feature heavy 16-gauge weather resistant galvanized steel sides in 2 1/2, 5 and 10 sections. We call them "X" sides because they are "X tra" strong and will span 20' between supports. And they are built toughest and will stay looking good "X tra" long!

Do It Your Way!
Match your feeding layout and requirements with reversible elevating conveyors. Inclines and declines without sacrificing capacity, speed and uniform delivery. All inclines and declines are infinitely adjustable up to 30 degrees elevation for textured belt and up to 15 degrees elevation for smooth belt.

Tough 1/8" thick polyester belt with PVC covering and dependable stainless steel industrial splice is a year round performer and flexes in sub-zero weather. Choice of smooth or textured belt for conveyors in 14", 18" and 24" widths. Belt speed is 230 feet per minute.





YOU JUST CAN'T MATCH OUR MIX

No Preowned Silos!!

In order to avoid hauling and drying costs, let us build a corn storage unit to preserve your valuable grain at 20%-30% moisture.

To keep your stored corn bright and yellow, you must protect it from oxygen and heat. Our 6" thick concrete walls reflect 38% of light beams, resulting in 780 times more heat-resisting ability than steel, and 25 times more insulating power than steel.

Our 6" thick walls have a very low leak potential compared to pre-fab silos of any kind, and a very low maintenance requirement.

BEFORE SPENDING A LOT OF MONEY FOR ENERGY TO DRY YOUR CORN, YOU WILL DO WELL TO CONSIDER THE MANY ADVANTAGES OF OUR POURED CONCRETE SILOS...

To unload your corn, we can install the simple auger system, the Laidig 43 unloader, or the Flying Dutchman. Let's discuss the options, and what is best for your situation.

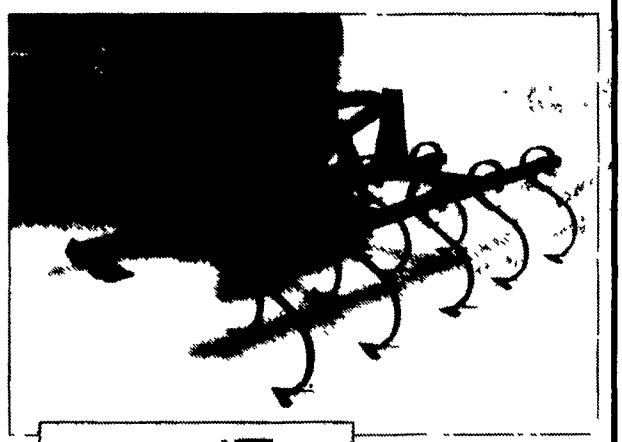
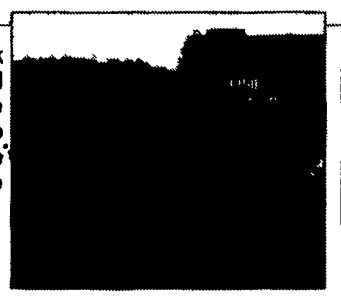
THE VAN DALE ADVANTAGE

SHALLOW TILLAGE APPLICATOR

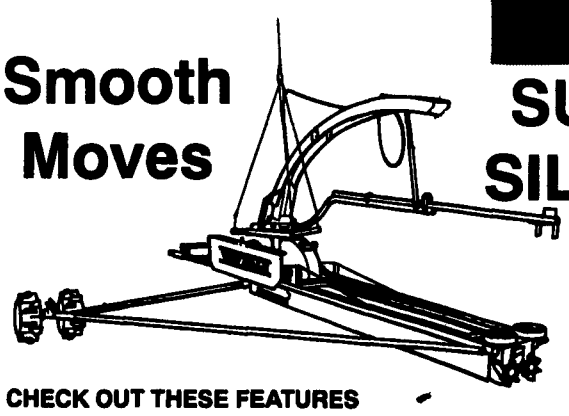


Van Dale's newest generation of liquid manure applicators is based on a simple, yet superior design. The Shallow Tillage Applicator consists of a double row of nine heavy duty cultivator shanks, evenly spaced, to provide maximum mixing action of top soil and liquid manure. All shanks are equipped with 9" sweeps to attack the soil and give consistent application and excellent soil agitation across a 12' width. The result is more manure nutrients available to plant roots because incorporation is done between 3" to 6" deep—ideal for crop utilization.



AN EFFECTIVE METHOD OF MAXIMIZING THE FERTILIZER VALUE OF LIQUID MANURE

Smooth Moves



SURFACE DRIVE SILO UNLOADERS

Smart farmers look to Van Dale for all the right moves when it comes to surface drive technology. Even frozen and hard packed silage and haylage are no match for Van Dale's Magnum and SD 2000. Now Van Dale offers even greater efficiency with its DURAGLIDE® Impeller available on the SD 2000. The Duraglide lessens gummy buildups, uses less power and provides faster and more reliable delivery.

BARN CLEANERS

Built to clean faster... built to last longer!

All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners

Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It shows where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only.
You want a totally-forged link because forging changes the grain on the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength to serve you longer.

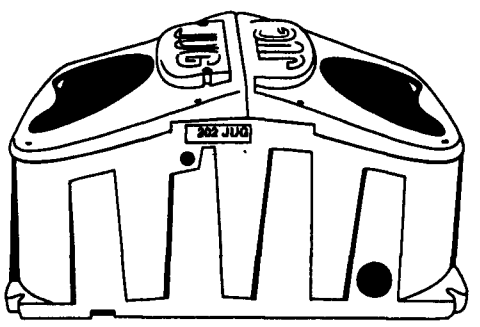
The JUG passes the "winter of '93-'94" test



Remember the c-c-c-c-c-cold winter of '93-'94? Wondering what the next one will bring and how your herd will fair?

Install the energy-efficient JUG to reduce concerns about freezing cattle fountains. Even in the coldest weather, the JUG performed, while the competition's waterers did not.

While the JUG's thick urethane insulation keeps the winter cold out, its patented drawtube recirculates water. Cooler bowl water exchanges with warmer reservoir water to keep bowl water open. The JUG will do its job.

A cold weather test conducted by an Iowa college during the winter of '94 demonstrated its energy efficiency. The JUG used only 108 kilowatts of electricity over four months for a cost of $8.64. A competitor's waterer used 816 kilowatts, costing $65.28, almost eight times as much. The test confirmed the JUG's energy efficiency.

No other waterer equals the Jug for clean, palatable water. Low maintenance, the JUG also meets the requirements for dairy approval.

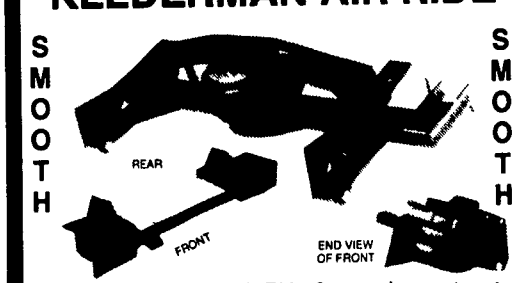
KELDERMAN AIR RIDE



Adding a Kelderman Air Ride Conversion system to your present suspension will result in a two stage suspension system. This is not to be confused with adding an Air bag mounted above the axle. Allows adding extra spring leafs to increase load rating and still maintain Air-Ride comfort

The bolt on basic package utilizes an air stem mounted in a convenient location to add or remove air from the system.

Optional 12 volt compressor allows changing air pressure setting on the go.

Currently available for front and rear suspension in Dodge Series 250 & 350 trucks Available soon for Dodge Dakota models.

Also available for some Ford, Chevy, and GMC truck models. Special orders available for most motor homes. This option will smooth out the ride on those rough-road fishing/camping trips

M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- LIVESTOCK BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of heights and widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24'; landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.

IF DAIRY COWS COULD VOTE... ... ☑ HARRIS WOFFORD WOULD WIN BY A LANDSLIDE!

Harris Wofford is the best friend Pennsylvania dairy farmers have in Washington. Dairy cows know it and so should you.

Harris went to bat to fight the highly flawed dairy provisions of the Uruguay Round GATT agreement which would put thousands of our family farmers and milk cows in unemployment lines. He led the way in fighting to make GATT less harmful to our nation's dairy industry. Today, Harris Wofford continues to fight to prevent the New Zealand Dairy Board, the OPEC of the international dairy market, from dominating the U.S. commodity dairy market.

Question: Where was Rick Santorum? Answer: Nowhere to be seen!

Harris stood up for farmers two years ago when the threat of massive imports of Goya cheese and mushrooms loomed. Harris Wofford saved countless jobs on family farms and in the many small businesses and rural communities which depend on a healthy Pennsylvania farm economy for their bread and butter.

Question: Where was Rick Santorum? Answer: Nowhere to be seen!

- ❑ GATT Dairy Provisions: Harris Wofford worked with a united dairy industry to make GATT less harmful to farm families. He was one of the principal movers behind the Dairy Export Enhancement Act of 1994 (DEEA), which was a bipartisan measure supported unanimously by the House Agriculture Committee. However, most of the DEEA provisions were killed by Rick Santorum's House Ways and Means Committee!

- ❑ Goya Cheese Imports: Again, Harris Wofford worked around the clock in Congress to kill a scheme to eliminate the duty on Goya imports under the Generalized System of Preferences ("GSP") program. Imported Goya is a substitute for American Parmesan cheese. Unlimited, duty-free Goya imports would have undercut American Parmesan cheese by 30 cents a pound, equal to more than $3 per hundredweight on farm milk prices.

Other Pennsylvania Congressional offices and dairy representatives tried to enlist Santorum's assistance on GATT dairy issues but were unsuccessful because of Santorum's indifference to agricultural issues, particularly those impacting Pennsylvania farm families. Does this sound like a man that cares about your livelihood?

Contrast Santorum's indifference to Wofford's "Johnny on the Spot" attitude when it comes to taking care of dairy's concerns on international trade matters. Harris Wofford has assumed a unique role in the U.S. Senate when it comes to protecting America's and Pennsylvania's dairy producers. Cows know all of this and now so do you.
They can't vote, but you can...

VOTE ☑ Harris Wofford on November 8TH!

Paid for by Kay Zeosky, an independent dairy producer, and not authorized by any candidate.

To Chop Or Not To Chop? It's The Question For Residue Management

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — Now is the time when farmers are considering options for postharvest management of leftover cornstalks and other crop residue. And the question many are asking is, "To chop or not to chop?"

Before deciding whether to chop cornstalks or leave them intact, several factors should be considered, said Lynn Hoffman, senior research associate in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Proper management of crop residue has become widely accepted as a means to reduce soil erosion. To keep as much residue as possible on fields, Hoffman generally recommends leaving cornstalks alone. If chopped he says, the smaller pieces may be blown or washed away by wind or rain.

But there are circumstances in which chopping may be the best option. "If you plan to use secondary tillage equipment, such as a field cultivator or harrow, after planting in the spring, you'll probably want to chop the cornstalks," Hoffman said.

"A lot of secondary tillage tools don't have enough clearance to allow those uncut stalks to pass through without plugging up the machinery. But if the stalks won't present a problem with secondary tillage, I'd recommend you leave them alone."

If you use a corn-picker to harvest your corn, cutting the stalks also might help to distribute the material more uniformly over the field. "But if you use a combine," said Hoffman, "it usually will shred the stalks enough to give you reasonably uniform distribution without chopping them."

Some farmers who chop their cornstalks in the fall perform some type of tillage operation to partially cover the cut stalks and keep them in place. But Hoffman says there are risks in that practice. "You have to be careful that you don't violate the conservation plan assigned to the farm or to that particular field," he said. "You have to be aware of and follow normal erosion control measures."

Hoffman says some farmers chop cornstalks thinking that it will help control insects, such as corn borers. But he says that's not necessarily true. "We've never been able to demonstrate that chopping the stalks reduces the number of insects enough to have an effect on next year's production."

If you plan to use a no-till drill to plant alfalfa or oats in the early spring, then you are better off not cutting leftover cornstalks, according to Hoffman. "When there's still a little frost and the stalks are stuck fast to the ground, you get less plugging of the grain drill when the stalks are left intact," he said.

For additional information on managing crop residue, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

ADADC Scholarships Offered To College Students

Syracuse, N.Y. — Two $500 scholarships are available through the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC).

College students pursuing degrees in the dairy industry from ADADC's marketing area, including New York, northern New Jersey and northeastern Pennsylvania, are eligible.

The Leo Briggs Memorial Scholarship is available to any collegiate individual who has promoted the dairy industry by exhibiting leadership in dairy industry organizations. Founded in 1983, the scholarship was established as a tribute to Leo Briggs for his superior leadership within the dairy industry for more than 30 years.

A second $500 scholarship, the ADADC Memorial Scholarship, is available to former dairy princesses from ADADC's marketing area. The applicant must have completed one year as a dairy princess and must be pursuing a career in dairy product marketing, dairy manufacturing, home economics, ag communications, or journalism.

The scholarship is offered in memory of several ADADC staff and board members for their contributions to dairy promotion.

Both college scholarships are based on grade point average, extracurricular activities, future plans, and a 400-word essay discussing the applicant's commitment to a career in the dairy industry. Application deadline for both scholarships is Wednesday, Nov. 30.

Request applications by writing to the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., 219 South West Street, Syracuse, New York 13202-1205. For more information, contact Stephanie Meyers at (315) 472-9143.

Along with accuracy, the 5300 gives you fast, high capacity seeding, so you spend less time refilling hoppers. Grass seeding attachment for 16x7.

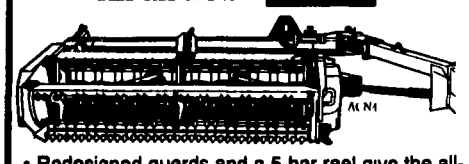
CUTS BETTER-AND WIDER-THAN ANYTHING IN IT'S CLASS

An all-new MoCo



- Redesigned guards and a 5-bar reel give the all-new 820 a cleaner cut.
- The 820's 9-foot 9-inch cut is 6 inches wider than anything in it's class.
- An all-new three point suspension system provides unmatched flotation.
- An exclusive Power-Cushion helps prevent the driveline from bottoming out during tight turns.
- Exclusive John Deere urethane-roll conditioning.

Model 820 - 9'9" Cut

JOHN DEERE BALERS DELIVER CONSISTENCY, CONSISTENTLY

Building "suare-er," stackable, solids bales is what our proven hay control system is all about.

Once hay is inside the baler, a continuous-flow, floating auger moves the crop into a tapered chamber...precompressing the hay before it reaches the bale chamber. This makes John Deere bales denser, and more consistent. A difference you'll notice when stacking and feeding bale after John Deere bale.
